Jeshua Speaks about: THE BUBBLES IN THE SOUP

FEBRUARY 2017

Beloved one, I have heard you questioning. I have heard you wondering, “What is this year going to be like for me?” Some of you have plans, things that you have been putting into some order of the timing. Some of you know where you want to go and some of you do not, but you know that where you are is not where you will be staying. So you are making some plans to be looking around to see what more you can find for yourself, what more you can create.

Truly, you create your reality moment by moment. I would underscore that. This year in your timing it is going to be more beneficial if you remember that you create your reality moment by moment. If you do not like what you are seeing, stop, take a deep breath, and re-create. And by that, I mean exactly what it sounds like. Re-create, but also take time for recreation; to breathe in joy and to be in joy.

A lifetime is not meant to be just an existence. You have already felt the constraints of the different world messages that you have to be a certain way, and you have come to the place where you have said, “No, I am moving out of what I feel to be my reality. It is too tight.”

So you are re-creating. It will be necessary, because you have fashioned for yourselves in this geopolitical grouping the most wondrous drama, the most wondrous actors and actresses upon the stage. You are going to be watching, and there will be the habitual very vast judgment that comes rising up within you, and then you will want to take the deep breath and to re-create and to say, “Okay, there is more happening than what is appearing,” because there is.

You have foreordained these changes. You may say, “Well, no, I didn’t; I thought I had a mindset in a different way.” But, at the soul level, you have agreed that you will walk this drama and enjoy it, because everything works for the fulfillment of the at-One-ment; everything. And you create as you go along. You judge as you go along. And when the judgment feels too tight and too painful, laugh, because at times it may seem to be a heavy drama, but, in truth, you are writing a comedy. So take that to heart.

There are times when you will be watching the actors on the stage and you will wonder, “I created this? Why did I create this?” Then with the deep breath you will have an insight and realize that truly you are clearing away old thought patterns. There will be much of that in this year, and I advise you, if you will take my advice, to treat it lightly. It will be fun, especially from my vantage point. Come and join me at my vantage point. You will see things a wee bit differently perhaps.

Now we are going to talk about the collective consciousness. The above

ADVANCE NEWS

It is that time of year again when we begin making plans for being together with Jeshua, Mother Mary, Joseph and Mary Magdalene for our week at the Summer Advance.

This year’s Advance will be held at the Whistler Resort in British Columbia, Canada, the week of July 24th through the 28th. The mountain village of Whistler lies two hours north of Vancouver, B.C., on the Sea to Sky Corridor. It is a world-renowned skiing venue in winter, a relaxing natural get-away in summer with hiking trails, a gondola ride to the top of Whistler/Blackcomb mountains, breathtaking vistas and inspiring scenery. The Village boasts world-class dining and little cafes to suit everyone’s taste, plus a supermarket to make your own meals. Whistler has it all! We have often held our Summer Advance at Whistler, from 2001 through 2006 and again in 2011.

Daytime workshops and Evening meetings will be held at the Legends Conference Center, and accommodations are available at the Legends Hotel. Details and cost information will be available in a flyer later this month. We are in process of putting the schedule together. There will be mind- and spirit-expanding daytime workshops and Evenings with Jeshua and Company (!)

So mark your calendar and stay tuned for further information!

See you at the Mountain! --Judith introduction was a preamble leading up to the collective consciousness, of which you are a part and into which you put your input moment by moment.

The collective consciousness can be likened unto a big kettle of soup. If you can, envision a big kettle, and in there you have a most wonderful stew; we will call it a soup. It is doing its thing as you put the different ingredients into it—you and the brothers and sisters. It is quite a mixture, as you can imagine.

Everything in the collective consciousness is within that big kettle, and from time to time, as you want to have what seems to be individuality, you put your ladle in and scoop out a bit of the soup. You look at it, you enact it, you are of ownership with it, and you want to know, “What are the ingredients that I align with?”

Other lifetimes you put your ladle in and scoop out something else, and you have a different mixture. This lifetime is one that is most wonderful in that you are cooking and allowing a most wonderful development—evolution, you will call it—because there are bubbles in the soup, bubbles of reality that are truly inspired from the place of True inspiration. There are bubbles that are coming up to the surface, ones that show that there is much that is cooking, brewing, however you want to put it, and bringing to the awareness at the surface much of change, because you have asked, “I want to see change. I want to awaken.” And you have said, “I am willing.” Therefore, the bubbles have started to evolve.

You are bringing much to the surface, much to the boiling point of the bubbles coming to the surface so that you can see what you have been cooking, so that you can even taste it, and either resonate with it or not.

Two thousand years ago when I spoke to you, I used what are called parables, the stories that carried meaning. Well, now we have a story about the stew pot. If you have not eaten, it will appeal to you. If you are full to the eyebrows, it may not appeal quite so much. I jest, because it is a way of understanding the collective consciousness of which you have agreed you will be part as you have human identity.

Now, some of the bubbles are going to be the kind that bring enlightenment to you, so that you are going to want to see what is encased in the bubble, and for the most part it is going to be Light. The bubbles have been...I don't want to use the word “stewing”, but I suppose that fits...the bubbles have been cooking for some time, and in truth, as you look at the awakening of the whole collective consciousness, there is much that is happening, much that truly two thousand years ago was not there.

There were pockets of Light two thousand years ago. There were ones who were ready to hear the message and did hear and have come back from time to time to spread the message of hope, of love, of encouragement, of living in the heart truly as the “Coeur”, encouragement, and being to other ones the friend who uplifts them from time to time when they feel they are a bit down.

You have all done that in the past week. You have spoken to ones who felt that they were at a down point. You have spoken to them, whether you knew where they were or not, and because of your Light, they have been able to see a glimmer and to come to their own awakening, their own reckoning that perhaps their life was worth living.

You have known that down spot, because you have been there. From time to time, even in this lifetime, you have looked at everything around you and wondered, “What is going on? Why am I here?” I hear you when you cry out. Sometimes you cry out to me. Hopefully you feel that I answer you, because I do. You cry out and want to know, “What more is there? What good is there? Why am I here?”

I hear that question quite often, and I answer you. “Be the Light that you are. Bring enlightenment to other ones, and in doing so, you bring it to yourself.” Because truly, that which you share with another one, you have to know, feel, recognize in yourself as it flows through you. In any situation where you find yourself dealing with ones who may be a bit blinded to their own Reality, your Light will help them see their way Home.

This is truly what all of your brothers and sisters are praying for, asking for, crying out for. They want to know Home, and they know that the world is not Home. It does not feel like Home, and at this point in your evolution, it is not Home. At some point in time, there will be the knowing of Home upon Earth, but it is not here yet. You are moving towards it.

You, as you ask for guidance; you, as you read, as you study, as you share with other ones and there comes a glimmer of Light to the inner reality, you are coming to the place of knowing what Home would feel like. I have heard you say this. “This is not Home. I know what that would feel like, and this isn’t it.” I’ve heard you say that quite often. But in Truth, you are bringing the remembrance of Home even into a reality that does not understand, and for a good bit of time does not even desire it, because ones are so busy with the attitudes, the events of the world.

Now, the world, as you have seen, is diametrically opposed to the peace of Home. The world is of the mind, for the most part; not entirely, but for the most part. And you have learned from the time you were very, very small how to use the mind to fit in, how to be like the brothers and sisters, and you have said as you grew in stature and in understanding, “There must be more. There must be more than just what the world is showing me, because the world is showing me sorrow, agitation, quarrels, ones feeling very down about themselves and about other ones, and lashing out because they feel there is nothing else to be living for.”

That is the world of the mind that judges. But you have heard the still, small Voice that has said, “There is more. Seek and you shall find.” This is so true, because as you change your point of focus from always looking at the world, and you widen the perspective of everything that you take in, you begin to see that there is much more than what the world is telling you, much more than the depression that ones are feeling now, much more than just the drama, the heavy drama.

And you find yourself from time to time getting a strange thought that actually brings a smile to your lips, because you feel something that feels healing. It may be a funny thing that happened on the way to work. It may be the love of the four-footed ones. They are very good at bringing you right back to the heart; not to the mind, but to the heart, because they know; they truly live in the place of the heart.

They live to please, and they are most upset when they cannot please you, because they know that has been what they agreed they would come and do. And as you are in sync with them, right heart to heart with them, there is the smile that goes across the face, the inner smile that lights up all of the cells of the body and says, “Hey, this feels good. I think you are the most wonderful four-footed one with the tail that is always wagging.”

You know that feeling. That is why you have the four-footed ones: to remind you whenever you get so caught up in the world and in the mind to come back Home again, to be as the small or large four-footed one, even the small one who thinks perhaps that he could be the large four-footed one, and you know why? It is because truly their aura, their energy level, is not contained within the body. And as they understand their energy, they are perhaps the small Chihuahua who thinks he is a horse, because he is.

They live in the heart, and they have lessons to teach you. All of you, as you interact with the four-footed ones, have the opportunity to know Home, because that is where they live. So if ever you are feeling down and confused, go to your neighbor, go to your friend, and go to the pound and be with the four-footed ones who know only to give love, to be love, because that is what they are.

Now, back to the evolution of the collective consciousness. If you were able, and you are, to contrast and compare the collective consciousness two thousand years ago with the collective consciousness now, depending on where you sit in your judgment, you might say, "Well, not much has changed."

But if you are being open to it, you will understand that there are more ones seeking, opening, having the experiences that go beyond just ordinary life. Even if they do not know they have been asking, they have been asking, and they are rising up like the bubbles in the soup. They are rising up because they feel there is a call. They feel there is a call from Home, even if they would not identify it by those words.

They are ready to talk with you, to talk with any of you who are open to sharing how you have come Home from time to time. You do not stay there at Home. You would like to, because the world can be a very hard taskmaster. So you would like to stay in the place of peace, but then you recognize that you have been called to be in the world and to interact with the brothers and sisters, so you come back and take on the cloak of forgetfulness and say, "Okay, I will be one more day walking amongst the sleeping."

Many of them are hoping that maybe they can just sleep their way through life, but then something happens and they find they have to deal with the world. And they do not always feel that they are prepared to deal with it. As fate will have it, or as the soul group will have it, you meet up, and you may say in words to them, "How's it going?" or you may just meet eye to eye and smile.

We have spoken often of the value of the smile, how it costs nothing to give, and yet is everything to receive. It can change a person's day as you are willing to smile and to acknowledge that they are worth your smile.

So on a day when perhaps you are watching the multitude of ones who pass by in your workplace or your shopping area or wherever you see the groups of people, take heart. Know that truly there are more ones awakening now, coming to the place of questioning, the place of wanting to know more, wanting to be in a place of expressing more.

You have attracted to yourself from time to time ones who have questions, ones who want to feel more, want to be in your presence because they think and they know that you know a secret. You know something about life that they want to know. So they may ask you in words, but quite often not, but they may ask you, as you smile—and they can even be a bit belligerent about it—"What is there good to smile about?"

And yet as you share the gift of a smile, they know that you have found something, and it is something that they want. So never think that one day goes by that has not been in sharing, because truly if you are just sitting in your room at home and have not gone out and interacted with the physical bodies, you still have interacted with ones in spirit, ones who may be a bit lost, and they come to you.

There are many in your room right now who are listening, who are watching your Light, trying to find their way Home, finding that you truly have a very uplifting presence that they feel drawn to. So even if you do not go out and rub the bodies in shaking hands with another one, in Truth, you are surrounded by many, and you are their teacher.

You have wondered sometimes as you have journeyed through life, "What am I doing here? Am I doing anything good, anything worthwhile? Why"—I've heard this question many times—"was I born?" You were born because you chose to be born. You were born because you answered a call to take upon yourself physicality and walk amongst the brothers and sisters in a way that they understand, so that you could bring your Light to them; to smile, to encourage, even if you spoke no words, the same as the four-footed ones; to be the presence of love, to show them that life truly is a gift that they have given to themselves, and yet do not realize it.

Life is a gift. The human life, the physical life, even with all of its problems of the body—oh, my goodness, you know, how the muscles...etc., the whole story of physicality—and yet it is a gift that you have given to yourself. So you would be wise to enjoy it, wise to walk, to smile, to radiate the presence of love, and to allow others to know that you see them, because this is truly what the brothers and sisters are asking for. They want to be seen. They want to be acknowledged. They want to think that perhaps someone in this big wide world sees their value.

And as you meet their eye, if they will meet yours—oftentimes they will not—and you smile at them, they wonder—and they may even be quite gruff about it. “Why are you smiling? How dare you?” But you do dare. Even if you are having what is termed the “bad day”, you still find even in that “bad day” times where you find yourself laughing at self. Please remember to laugh at self, because you are a laughing matter. Take that deeply to heart.

I laugh often. Laughter was something that you shared with me two thousand years ago. You have walked with me two thousand years ago. It is no small thing that you find yourself once again attracted to the energy of love, because truly that is your nature. The world will speak to you of hardship, of trials and tribulations, aspects that you should tribulate about, but in Truth, life is a gift. Unwrap it, discover it, live it, because you are of value.

The consciousness is waking up. Look for the bubbles.

So be it.

JESHUA Q&A

JESHUA WALKED THE AMERICAS

In the Book of Mormon it said that Jesus walked the Americas (Oh, yes) And that is one of the things that Joseph Smith proclaimed to have known about (Right) How was that possible?

All things are possible. So, yes, after the crucifixion and the resurrection, I wanted to know more of what I could experience, the same as you; I wanted to know, “What else is there?” So with my most beloved mate, Mary of Magdala, we traveled. We went, first of all, to where my uncle had the tin mines in what is now known as Britain. He had a ship, you see, and he made the voyage back and forth bringing tin from Britain. So we went on the ship to Britain shortly—well, I say shortly; actually it was quite a time after the resurrection, because, you see, there were stories that were getting abroad about how I didn’t really die, that my body had been taken somewhere, and somehow I wasn’t really crucified. The followers that I had were saying, “He lives.”

So, of course, the soldiers were looking for me, and they were making life a little bit rough on my friends. So Mary and I decided we would travel, and we went by ship to Britain. From Britain we walked. We walked across what was then a frozen area, across what you know now as the ocean, and we came to the Americas and we walked. We joined villages from time to time and stayed for a while to have discourse with them, whoever was there, to say, “How is your life? What are you believing? What are the customs?”

We would share what we knew, what we had experienced, as much as they would accept, and so we walked—North America, South America. Then we crossed over from what you now call the state of Alaska across—because there was again the ice formation, bridge—to what you now call Russia. So we went through Europe. We landed later into what was known as Prussia—Germany, perhaps, you call it—and France. We walked. We stayed some places, and we asked,

“How are you doing? What are you doing? What are the customs?” because we wanted to know.

Now, this is written about in some places, and ones will say, “Well, it’s just fanciful.” But isn’t all of life fanciful? It is. Whatever you want to experience, you will make possible for yourself. Whatever you believe, it will happen. I knew, after the crucifixion and the resurrection, that there was no limitation to what I could do, where I could go. You have the stories about me being the spaceship commander; they are true, because nothing is beyond the limit of what can be experienced and expressed as the divine will.

So yes, it is a very good question. I did give, some time ago, a discourse about the six hundred years after the resurrection, that I created a body, inhabited a body, traveled around. It was a wonderful time. So you have the legends, the stories that seem preposterous, because for you, as you feel contained within a body and you feel there has to be a certain limit to the body as far as years, and then that’s all there’s going to be, but once you take off that belief in limitation, you are free to create, which you are anyway, but you can create other lifetimes, as they seem to be.

With the descriptions that I read, it described you almost as the same age and the same physical structure as in the paintings (Right, why not?) Okay. So you picked the same body type over and over again?

Oh, I just didn’t let it age. I didn’t have to reincarnate. I knew that life is forever ongoing. I knew that I was creating. I knew that I was using the Father’s energy—love, creative ability. As I have said many times to you, you are the extension of the Creator, of the creative ability, and so I created and I said to the body, "I'm not going to age. I'm going to stay." I picked an age of about 33, between 33 and 36. And my beloved Mary did the same. So, yes, the only limitations are the ones that you impose upon yourself.

And then why did you give up the body form at that point?

Because I wanted to go on to the next chapter and see how it felt to come and channel through. I wanted to see how it would feel as spirit energy to be able to pop in and pop out; anything that you can imagine. Because, you see, you are not limited. There is generational teaching that says you are a small one, you are born of woman, you grow, you get taller and taller, sometimes taller than the mother. You experience a certain number of years, and then you are expected to lay down the body, but you don't really have to, and there are stories of ones who didn't; they're still with you. They keep themselves refreshed so they don't shock people too much. All things are possible.

I'm wondering if you have any footwear you recommend (Laughter) for those long, multi-continent treks. On the spaceship or going across the Andes, the same footwear?

Different types, because you can create as you go along. If we were climbing through the snow, we had the big boots with the cleats on the bottom, whatever you needed. Whatever one needs, you create. I know it boggles the mind, it stretches the mind, but that is one of the reasons I am here, is to stretch your mind, to say to you, "Look, all things are possible."

You would say that, yes, for God, all things are possible. But if you are the extension of God energy, which you are, all things are possible to you, except that you have agreed to generational teaching, and you have said, "Well, the body starts out, it grows a bit, it grows a bit more, it grows a bit more in different ways, and then at some point you start to wind down." And you say, "Okay, I think I want to go off and have another experience without the body." But whatever you choose, you can have it. It is a free choice.

LOVE CAN COME IN ANY FORM

I wanted to share this quote that just came across my life today. I think it's by Eckart Tolle, but it has to do with love. It says, "The only way love can come into your life is not through form, but through that inner spaciousness that is presence. Love has no form." I just find that helpful.

Right. Because love with you is in a certain form, but you see the beloved pet, different form, but there is love. The beloved pet loves you, looks to you, is happy to see you when you come home, might bark a bit. So yes, it has no form, and yet you can feel it. You can know that it is there.

Just bring yourself, your consciousness to this present moment, and there it is.

And there it is. Sometimes it just comes upon you as a surprise. You meet someone you haven't seen in a long time, and there is an outpouring of love, so happy to see them; the same thing with the four-footed ones. Maybe you haven't seen the one before, but they come along, and there is the feeling of love; even with a goldfish.

THE WRAP-UP

This has been a most wonderful evening, to be able to reach out and touch, to give the hugs, to be able to look upon the faces that are most alive with love, to encourage and to know that truly all of you are heart-centered. Mind, yes, will question, but when the mind gets too overbearing, which it can do sometimes, then you breathe, and that energizes. Then you breathe, and you know the love center. Then you breathe, and you are taken out of the smallness of what the world has said you have to suffer, the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune; definitely outrageous. It has been my great pleasure to be amongst you in this evening, to be able to walk, to talk, to give the hugs, and most of all, to bless you with my love. Go now in love, for that is truly what you are.
