Jeshua Speaks about: SOLAR ECLIPSE

Beloved one, you have recently experienced or heard about a most wondrous happening which in many earlier times was cause for concern. It was when the sunlight would be blotted out, and the rays of the sun would not be streaming to holy Mother Earth.

There was much fear attendant upon it. What would happen if the sun disappeared and never came back? This was a belief that struck fear into many a long time ago. What if a god took away the warmth and light of the sun? You believed in many unfathomable and capricious gods. Now an eclipse is an occasion to be celebrated and to be witnessed and to know in faith that, yes, the sun is going to come back.

You have come to a place now of trust. You have come to a place where you make the miracle; truly you make the miracle of knowing that it is going to come back. Your reality is most wondrous in that it is malleable. It is changeable. It can be and is moment by moment changing. It seems to be a continuum, but you can interrupt that at any moment and change it. You have the faith and the knowledge that the sun is going to come back.

Now, on another level, have you ever felt that the sun has gone out of your life? Has there been someone who was the sunshine of your life, and they took the physical appearance away? Now, they did not disappear. They are with you always, because truly there is only One. But the separate body has left you, and there has been a feeling of lack of sunshine, a feeling of lack of Light, a very sad feeling that something you valued has left you.

You have gone through a period of mourning, a period of missing that energy, a period of, in truth, paying value to them, acknowledging to yourself how much they have meant to you, how much sunshine they brought to you, how they allowed you, seemingly—now, you did it yourself, but they allowed you to feel that life was worth living, that it was fun.

Then, because of their story, their history, seemingly they left. And you have said, “Well, I know they still have to be here, but I don’t hear them, I don’t see them, I don’t feel the sunshine of their love any longer.” Then as time has gone on, you have become more trusting of the knowing that truly they have not left you, they cannot leave you, and that from time to time you feel their presence. You

LOOKING FORWARD

First of all, Thank You to all who attended and made the recent Advance so special. The wonderful variety of workshops, the uplifting conversations, the sharing of ideas and hugs from Florida to and including Canada, plus, of course, the Evenings with Jeshua, Joseph, Mother Mary and Mary Magdalene made for an unforgettable week of Joy (the theme of the Advance). Thank you, all!

This summer’s Advance flew by on such high energy that no one wanted to wait a year to see each other, so we are planning a Winter Advance in February, a long weekend, Thursday evening through Sunday morning, again in Sequim. More details to follow later. This one will be By Invitation Only. Stay tuned!

One of the joys of having so much talent here in the Pacific Northwest, especially here on the Peninsula, is the opportunity for availing oneself of the various one-day workshops being offered by Oakbridge University. A special one is coming up next month on the afternoon of October 14th: “Angel Activations” with Rev. Kimberly Marrooney. It will be held in the Glass House of the Center for Spiritual Living in Port Angeles, on North Bagley Creek Road, on Saturday afternoon from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. $25. For registration, and more information, call 360-681-5233. See you there! --Judith feel a saying from them, something that was a motto perhaps that they had, and it will remind you and “prove” to you that they are still here with you. And they are.

So if there has been an eclipse of the sunshine of someone you love, allow yourself to trust, to believe, and to know that their sunshine has gone nowhere away from you. They are playing, evolving, having experiences, as you will do after you have released the body. They are going onward in what they understand to be their extended lifetime.

It is most surprising to a lot of ones when they release the body, that the consciousness is still alive. “I am still aware.” They sometimes try speaking to you, but because there has been deeply ingrained belief, you think you do not hear them. They are shouting at you. They are trying to get your attention. They are putting things in front of you that remind you of them, and you, because of the deeply-seated belief, feel only the pain of separation when you see that which would be a reminder that, “I am still with you.”

I, one Yeshua, am still with you. I have gone nowhere away from you, and yet there has been the story told that I released the body upon the cross and that I came back, resurrected the body and then later ascended unto my Father to sit at His right hand, which I do—and His left hand and His lap, all at the same time.

It is what you do when you release the body. You have opportunity to know that you are in heaven. Even if you are not expressing with the body, you still have consciousness. You still have awareness. You are still alive, and this, for many, is a big surprise. This, for many, is confusing, because then they reach out to take hold of a glass of beverage and they cannot do it. Or they say something to you, and you seem not to hear or to trust what you hear inwardly. So there is a bit of the shifting of belief.

You are now preparing your consciousness for when it is without the body. You are doing preparation so that when you release the body, you will know, “I’m still alive. I’m still aware; not quite the same as it was with the body, but I still AM.” It will feel a bit strange, perhaps, for a moment or so, but not for long, because then there will be an idea that comes to you. “I want to see so and so, and it is going to take me a long time to get to see them, because they are half-way around holy Mother Earth.” But immediately you are there. So there will be a bit of the adjustment, but that is okay. You will adjust quickly. You will be most happy.

This is then the message that you want to give others who are still activating the body. You want to let them know, “I am okay. I’m actually happy, I am going much lighter than I did with the body.” And ones, because they have not been taught, will not feel that they hear you. They do hear you, but they do not trust it. Tell them this now; prepare them to believe.

What you are doing now in this lifetime is preparing yourself for the next chapter and setting the stage for other ones to know that you are still on the stage. You are the prima donna. You are right there. You are taking your bow. It was a good lifetime. You did your best. You are the master of ceremonies, and you have told all of the jokes, the humorous stories, and ones are very happy that they have come to your memorial.

And are you happy? You can be. Please, I advise you. When you turn up at your own memorial, have a good time at it. If that one who was a bit of a thorn upon the path in the lifetime turns up at the memorial, you can whisper in their ear, “Hey, you’re not finished with me yet.” Have a sense of humor.

But what you are doing now is very much like the preparation that you do for the solar eclipse on the physical. You are preparing for the next chapter in the story of your Lifetime—capital “L”. You are preparing. So in your times of meditation, allow yourself to make a list perhaps of how you want that chapter to be; not that you are going to hasten it. You are not going to rush forward and say, “Oh, well, I’m going to move on to heaven, because this life here with the physical is too difficult.” You are not going to do that, but you are going to have an ease about how it is going to be, how easy it is going to be.

You can tell loved ones before you release the body that you are going to be with them, and you can set up certain trigger points where they will say, “Oh, well, that’s Uncle Joe. He said he was going to do that, and sure enough, he has tickled the dog’s ear, and the dog is scratching away at his ear.” Or, whatever trigger you want to share with them.

You are the sunshine to other ones in your life. You are the one who brings forth the humor and makes others laugh. And you will continue to do that if you want to, after you have released the body. As you have been sunshine to someone, you will still be their sunshine—if they believe it.

So put a few hints out there. It is not that you are going to be releasing the body on the morrow; it is not going to be that fast. But you can put into motion the preparation for them to understand a solar eclipse and then the seeming eclipse of your releasing the body.

And the same you will know of your friends, the ones that you are close with and they are as sunshine to you; they will always be sunshine to you. And the ones who were as the thunderstorm and you would just as soon let them go, so be it; you can let them go.

Allow yourself to be in joy about your life, however it is; as it is on the physical level and as it may be on the spiritual level. Be in joy about it. Nothing truly has to be heavy. You have carried for many lifetimes the heavy burden of generational teaching that life—and they were speaking of the physical life—has to be a struggle. You have even had the religious teachings that the more you would struggle and the heavier the lifetime was, the more your reward in heaven.

Then you released the body and you have said, “Okay, where’s my reward?” And you have had to make your own reward; in other words, accept it. You would have to accept that the grass is still green in the meadow, that the daffodils still bloom in your space, that ones still smile at each other, and that there is love.

So as you do the preparation, just by living life in this day and time in a happy atmosphere, you will take that with you. The ones who seemed to be the grandmother/grandfather who knew how to make the most of everything: they are still making the most of heaven. And the ones who made the least, they have spent some time still making the least. Then somebody has whispered in their ear, the spiritual ear, “Hey, look at what I found.: Because, you see, there are teachers, friends everywhere. You can take that knowing to heaven with you. All of the friends that you have ever had in this lifetime, if they have released the body ahead of you, they will be there to meet you and to welcome you.

Now, I'm not saying this because you are going to pass on tomorrow. You are not. You have work to do here. So you are not excused to go immediately. But later on when you do go, know that truly I will meet you, if you want me to, and the loved ones who have gone before you, they will be there as well. In truth, you will have much fun meeting and greeting each one, but there is one caveat I would give you: a lot of times when ones release the body and feel the joy of heaven, as it is called, they often do what you know as youthing. So the way you remember them may not be the way they appear. Or, they may take upon themselves a certain image meantime so that you will recognize them, but not always.

Look for the spirit that you recognize. Great Uncle Joe was always telling jokes, always laughing, and laughing about his wooden leg. Well, now in heaven, he does not have a wooden leg. He has decided he does not need it. But he may put it on for you so that you recognize him. I bring that just as example.

What you have ahead of you is most wondrous, because you are expanding in your understanding and your acceptance of miracles, as they seem to be miracles.. You are being open to new teachings, new ideas that come to you. You play with an idea for a while, and it becomes more and more of depth of teaching for you, because you are open to it now.

You are all teachers to friends and relatives as they are open to it. Sometimes when you say something that may look to be to them far-fetched, way out there, you plant a seed, and it may come to fruition in this lifetime, or they may carry it with them. Nothing is ever lost. You have that now "proven" to you in your scientific circles, that energy is never lost. It may change form, but it is never lost.

A seed idea is never lost. Even if it is not acted upon right away, it is still there, and they carry it with them. And later on sometime, as you measure time—which is a most wonderful concept in itself—it may come to their awareness right up in front of them. They look at it, and they see it differently.

So if an idea comes to you, play with it, be happy with it, share it, and know that truly the sunshine in your life never goes out. You are your own sunshine. You are the sunshine for all of your friends, because you have learned the secret—which is truly not a secret—the secret that you are the maker of your reality moment by moment, and if you do not like what you are experiencing, sit down, think about it, change it.

Allow yourself to know that you can change your reality. Nothing is ever set in concrete, and there is no God up there judging you; only God as love, as allowance. If you choose things where you are going to stub the toe or skin the knee, love allows. It does not push you, but allows.

So as you have witnessed the temporary overshadowing of the sun in an eclipse, know that there can be a temporary darkening of your sunshine, but it is not for all time. Your sunshine will come back—the sunshine you have witnessed in a loved one and your own sunshine. As with the solar eclipse where you have seen the shadow cover up the sun, you know that truly it is passing. It is a most wondrous event, and now you understand that you are the Sunshine, and always and forever you will be shining, giving to other ones the Light for them to follow, the Light of spirit. So be it.

MINISTRY TO SELF

Beloved Friend, I would speak with you now about ministry: your ministry to the one Self which we are. Now, the ministry to Self will require something from you. In other words, you will have to be a doer. You will have to choose whom you will serve. Will you serve the world with its limited beliefs and its limited image? Or will you serve the higher Self of you?

Ministry to the one Self will ask you to be in conscious awareness of the divinity of all which happens in you and through you. Ministry to the one Self requires of you that you choose to be awake, that you choose to know holy vision.

Ministry to Self means, first of all, ministry to self—the individuality as you see yourself. It means ministering to the body: listening to it, taking care of it, nourishing it. It means ministering to the emotions of the self of you, listening to the feelings, acknowledging them, and nurturing them with understanding and allowance. And ministry to self means listening to the voice of the soul, acknowledging its deeper desires, and seeking out whatever is good, whatever is true, whatever is beautiful.

Choose, as often as is possible, to spend your moments in peace, in a state of upliftment. Choose to speak to others words which are of love. Choose to speak words to yourself which are of love, not condemnation or reproach. Choose, as often as is possible, to look upon every experience with holy vision and to bless it with your remembrance of the divine Creativity which has brought it forth.

Choose to read that which is uplifting. Choose to be in the space of the consciousness which allows you to feel expanded, to feel unlimited, to touch the place of the Christ of you. As you have heard the call of the body to be nourished, recognize that the soul of you calls out to be fed. Feed it with that which is uplifting, that which speaks of eternity, of beauty, of peace.

Choose to be with friends of like mind. Now, that does not mean that you will not be with other brothers and sisters in service. You will. But choose for the nourishment of your soul, as often as is possible, to be with ones who are living in the place of upliftment. And do not judge the other ones as you are in service with them.

Ministry to Self will see you in service to the brothers and sisters. You will behold in their questing something which you are also wanting to have answered. For all of the brothers and sisters have but the same purpose: the purpose of awakening, wanting to know Who they are, wanting to remember Love.

Ministry to Self will ask of you that you share what you have as tangible items—the clothing, the food, the household goods—with another brother or sister for the comfort of the body. But, more importantly, ministry to Self will ask of you to share with them what you are remembering: that which is allowing you now to choose for joy. For the brothers and sisters, many of them in their completion, are going through challenges which feel sorrowful and heavy, confusing.

Share with the brothers and sisters what you are remembering. Share with them a sentence, an idea. It does not have to be a whole soap box. You do not have to preach to them. But share with them an uplifting idea. Share with them something which has been revealed to you in that day, or the previous day, which has allowed you to come up higher.

Allow them to claim the spiritual food for their soul, as well. For their soul is crying out for nourishment, the same as yours. And as you find yourself coming up higher, feeling more wholesome, more holy, you find that you have more and more to share with the brothers and sisters. You will find that you have more and more of the tangible goods somehow coming to you and flowing through you to give to other ones, and you will find that you have more and more of the revelations to share with them: more and more of the soul food.

Do not be afraid to share with the brothers and sisters a word of encouragement, an idea which has come to you which has allowed you to come up out of the pit and to see once again the sunshine, the light of your own radiance, and thus to feel, “Yes, life is worth living.”

JESHUA Q&A

MARY MAGDALENE AS JOAN OF ARC

Could you tell us a little bit more about Mary Magdalene as Joan of Arc? Were you there with her in that lifetime, too?

Of course. Where else would I be?

Were you in the physical with her in that lifetime?

Not in the physical, no, but very close to her, and she felt it; she knew. Now, in truth, you, anyone can claim any lifetime, because there is no separation. So when she tells you that she incarnated as Joan of Arc because she wanted the experience of being burned at the stake and then resurrecting the body, this she did. It pushes the mind that is discrete into, “It has to be this way and only this way, and this way only one person can experience it,” which is not true. You can experience anything that you read about. You are experiencing as you read it. So ones would say, “Well, that’s a good cop-out.”

It happens to be the truth. So did she embody a physical body? Yes. Did she go through the burning at the stake? Yes. She prayed for a good bit of smoke so that she could allow the body to release its very strict identification before the flames would be so painful, although she had studied with the same masters that I did and knew how to lift herself out of the body, not to feel the pain. Did she resurrect the body? Yes. She wanted to know, “How do you do this?” And she found it most easy to do.

You, if you will accept it, you have done this. How else do you understand when I speak of resurrecting the body? How else would you understand it at a very deep level if you had not already experienced it? Well, I’ll tell you. You have experienced it, and you have, because there is no separation. So that which you can imagine, truly imagine...and if you are saying, “Well, I don’t think I can imagine the flame on the flesh,” strike a match and stick your finger into the flame. You don’t have to do the whole body. And you’ll have the experience of the burning flesh; a little bit.

So the body completely was burnt and she was able to resurrect it, to remake it?

Yes, to remake it, which pushes the buttons a bit. How could you do that? But the body is energy. Energy changes form, but it is never lost. So you can call it back. And she did something that was most feminine. She changed it a bit as she remade it, and made it a little more voluptuous. I did not care one way or the other. I love, but she decided she wanted a few more curves to it.

So did she go on and live a long time after that in that body?

Oh, yes.

It does stretch the mind.

It does. But when you are having so much fun being alive with the body, and you have already been through a lot of the testing or trials—whatever you want to call it—of physical life, and you have found that you are above and beyond physical life, then you just keep inventing new experiences, new adventures, new places, new people to interact with. This is why you have your legends of my walking the Americas; I did. So did Mary Magdalene with me. We walked together. We stayed young. We kept in good physical form.

You do this as well. Every morning when you awake, you remake the body. And oftentimes you remake it in the form that it was when you put it to sleep the night before, but you don’t have to. In the morning you can say, “I am a new person, a new body, and I claim a new body.” And the body energy has to follow the dictates of what you are imaging.

Now, if you go with the idea of, “Well, I just really have these aches and pains in the body when I went to bed last night, and oh, yes, there’s that ache in the hip again. Oh, my. Okay.” Well, yes, sure, the body is going to acquiesce. But if you say, “No, I let it go,” and then you do a little bit of the movement around and letting it feel limber, it responds. That is why my beloved friend and teacher has shared with you when she has had what is called the respiratory cold. When I inhabit the body and use it, no problem; no cough, no hoarseness. When she comes back and takes it again, then there is the time outside of time where there is decision made as to how it’s going to be, and oftentimes she would go back to coughing.

Does she resurrect the illness of the body?

Yes, she resurrects the illness with the body, and that is what many of you do, because it has been habitual. But now I have given you a new idea.

We can remake it differently (Exactly) younger every year (Younger every year) I love it.

OW!

MARY MAGDALENE AS JOAN OF ARC

Mary Magdalene reincarnated as Joan of Arc specifically so she could prove to herself that she could resurrect the body as you had done. Did she hang around for years after that in the new body without being recognized by anyone?

Yes, and that was not the reason that she went through the burning at the stake. She wanted to understand the physical body and how it would react to intense heat, okay; not well. It was an OW experience—o-w.
