

Marriage and Relationships

1993-10-01

To begin this evening, I want to welcome all of you and to say thank you for coming and celebrating with Tom and me on our special night tonight. For any of you who haven't been here for an evening with Jeshua with me, I just would like to briefly tell you about my process, because I don't go away anywhere. I just sort of step back and expand my consciousness and let Jeshua talk through -- Jeshua is Jesus: the Greek form of "Jeshua" is "Jesus" -- and so this is available to anybody who wants to do it. It's just a matter of kind of stepping aside and just opening up your consciousness and allowing the ideas and concepts to come through that way. So, I don't go off in a trance anywhere, and I usually start out sitting, but he has too much energy to sit and so he is usually up with the shoes off and walking around, being very much talking to people and in interaction with people.

The way this all came about for me was that when we formed Oakbridge and we started to have services on Sunday mornings, Tom asked me if I wanted to do the announcements, and I said, "Okay," I would share that. And then the idea came after I did the announcements, which seemed sort of dry, to just share something from my heart that maybe I had read that week or whatever -- just to pass along something beautiful -- and so I started out giving it like a thought for the day, and then it sort of expanded into a paragraph or so. And it got longer, and then the words came that I should leave the lectern and "go and be amongst the people." Those words were exactly what I heard: "Go and be amongst the people." And I thought, "I don't know what that means, but okay." So I came, and as many of you know, I would walk down and start talking. And there was like a real pull, an energy pull, to come at least this far {first row of seats} or maybe even farther. It was almost like I could feel the energy pulling me into that space.

And so I did that for several, many Sundays, just sharing whatever had gone on that week or seemed to be inspirational. And then about Easter time of this year Jeshua came through and announced that he was speaking through and that he had been for some time. And he announced who he was. And so now, he comes and talks and is very happy to be "amongst the people."

So, my process has been very different than some others that you see who sit and channel. And it wasn't something that I consciously thought about doing. It just had a natural process. So that's what you'll see happening tonight. I won't be sitting, and the eyes won't be closed. It is just very much here, and the only way I can explain it to you is just an expanded awareness, an expanded consciousness, where I sort of just feel myself to the side and just kind of open up to whatever and let it happen.

So that's why I say anyone can do it. You just have to kind of go with the flow or whatever. And the big thing with it is just trusting.

What we will do this evening is we will have the first part. Jeshua will come and talk. I always ask him, "Are you ready?" and he says he is much more ready than I am -- and this, I am sure, is very true. And then we will have a break after that. Then, the second part of the evening, we will have our reconsecration ceremony, Tom and I re-newing our wedding vows. Today, as you know, is our tenth wedding anniversary -- and much has happened in the ten years, much that we couldn't have even imagined ten years ago. But we will have a break before that happens.

So, I am going to sit, get myself centered, and then we'll see what happens.

{Pause.}

Indeed, beloved and holy Child of Light divine, Child of our Heavenly Father, it is my great joy to be here amongst you as this one has said and to share with you my joy -- which is not separate from your joy because your joy is my joy. This is where we abide eternally in the Kingdom of the Heavenly Father, which is all joy when you come into the full realization of the Child of God that you are.

It is as this one has said: I am always, as she would term it, ready, for what is there about the Christ that must prepare Itself? The Christ is always ready, prepared, and with you. So it takes, as she has said, only the slight change in what you would feel consciousness to be to be aware of my presence and of the presence of what you would term the other masters and teachers, loved ones who have gone on, those that you would feel separate from because the physical eyes cannot behold them. And yet, they are nowhere separate from you. They are right here with you.

For wherever your consciousness is, there they are. And it takes only your willingness to change your focus and to allow them in and immediately they are with you as I am with you, always.

It is my grand joy to be here to celebrate with all of you for, as it has been said many times, I enjoy a good party.

{Laughter.}

You are in the right spot.

Yes, I feel very fortunate, of course, to have been invited to be here with you but, as I have already said, I could not be otherwise. I am always with you.

This evening I have been asked to speak upon the topic of marriage and relationships, and it is truly a happy occasion when two seemingly separate individuals come together in a place where they would declare unto their brothers and sisters that they have found and wish to express love in this form.

It was at a marriage feast where I performed my first miracle, where my mother put me in a place of having me demonstrate publicly the powers that I was not yet familiar with and feeling confident with. She had come unto me and said that they were running out of the wine for the feast. And as you know, in our day and time that you shared with me, the wedding feast would go on for days. It was quite a celebration. And the wine had been used up -- all of the good wine -- and so my mother came unto me and asked would I provide more wine? And, at first, I felt very much as you would feel if your mother came unto you and asked you to provide more wine. You would probably say, "Wait until I hop in the car and go down to the nearest store, and I will bring some back."

But in that day and time that we shared it was not that easy to do. The store was not so readily available, and manifesting the wine was something that usually would take more time. But I asked the ones who were serving to fill up the wineskins with water. And I did not know how this was going to be accomplished, but I had experienced enough of the unlimitedness of my Heavenly Father that I knew that all things are possible, and so I spoke unto my Father with great faith, knowing through Him all things are possible, and asked that the water then manifest itself as wine.

And to my great delight, when it was poured from the wineskin it was truly wine. And I must share with you, much that occurred in my lifetime is as you are experiencing in your lifetime: there is that part of you that knows and has faith and trust and comes unto the heart and knows that the Heavenly Father will provide, and then there is that human part that stands slightly aside and questions and says, "Will this really happen?" Do you ever feel that?

Yes.

Yes, and so the human part of me was the part that was surprised and pleased that this had happened.

We have spoken often of how you are the Child of the Heavenly Father and the one sitting next to you is also the Child of the Heavenly Father and the one behind you and the one in front of you. Wherever you are, you are joined in the Love that you are.

It is truly a place of holy relationship when you recognize the Christ in the one in front of you, in the one who is beside you. And when two come together, recognizing the Christ in each other, there is an expanded awareness, a feeling of expansion, a feeling that has been called love.

Oftentimes when you go to a wedding, you will see the joy and you will see the love on the faces gathered there. This is mankind's way of putting seemingly the love outside of himself/herself and seeing it in the faces of others and picturing for himself or herself the Love that you are. The love that you feel for another -- where does it come from? It springs from the Heart. It springs from you.

When you allow this to be expressed in its fullness, you are experiencing your true Self. And it matters not whether it be according to what society would dictate unto you -- because, as you know, this has changed with various cultures and various societies. So that when you feel the love for another person, this is your own true Love, your own true essence being expressed, being allowed to come forth. And it matters not whether it is expressed from a man to a woman and a woman to a man or between two women or between two men, or between, as you would see, a mother and child or a child and the puppy. The feeling of love is the essence of your Self, so that wherever the circumstance arises where it calls forth from you your true nature, bless it with your true nature and love and love freely.

Love not with the strings attached, but love with a free love that lets the other one be who they are, lets them go along their path as they need to go, to experience what they need to experience, as a mother does with a child, knowing that the child will go from her, will grow up and will go from her to have its own experiences, and yet the bond of love is still there always.

Relationships, as they are called, mean relating your true nature to the one that you see in front of you, calling forth in your consciousness the true nature of that other one. And as you are experiencing their true nature, you offer to the other one the opportunity for them to experience that as well. For what they can see in you they must necessarily be themselves. It is a great blessing that you give unto others when you love them, because you allow them to see that love and by seeing that love and recognizing it, they must know that they are that Love as well -- at least you give them the opportunity for this.

It does not mean that they will see it immediately, but each time you offer unto them the opportunity to see that Love, it is a grand blessing. And it blesses the giver as well as the receiver. Is this not true?

Yes.

In every relationship, with any one, you will see pictured for you your belief about yourself. You will see pictured for you your belief about the world about you and how you imagine others to see you. And yet, it is your consciousness that is projecting that, for where else could it be?

So if you see others coming unto you in a loving way and expressing unto you the love, know that you are expressing that love as well. If ones are coming unto you and pushing the buttons as it would be, and this does happen, give thanks first of all for the button that is being pushed and examine what is coming up for you. What is its deeper meaning? What is it saying unto you about your belief about yourself? What is it mirroring for you? -- a good term that your world has. What is it mirroring for you?

Look at it with love, for you are Love. Everything that comes up to see is not a fault but a wound that has come up to be healed. And it cannot be healed, made whole, transformed, unless you first look upon it and are aware of it, and then transform it with love for yourself. Everything that comes up, do not judge, but look upon it as you would be the researcher or the student and ask yourself, "What is this telling me? What old wound have I been carrying?" for what you would see as lifetimes, and see it as a wound that just is asking for its healing. And you know very well what heals best is the love: love of yourself.

When I spoke unto you to love each other, one another, as I have loved you, it was for you to know the Love that you are. And when I gave you the second commandment, which was to love others as yourself, it was for you to know that you must have love of Self to express this for others -- even unto ones who would be coming and presenting unto you what you would feel as the chaos and the tumult in the life, the ones who may be hurting and confused. Know that what is coming up for them are the wounds to be healed. It is time that that wound has come up to be looked at, to be recognized and to be released. It is nothing more; it is not to be judged for yourself or for others.

Know that each person that you meet will reflect perfectly to you your belief. In this consciousness you may then thank them for what they are mirroring to you -- although at times the gift may not seem such a gift. At times like that, step back from it and look upon it in objectivity as much as you can -- and breathe. The breathing will allow you to step back one degree and to look upon the circumstance and the situation with new eyes and to choose anew. For everything that comes up is either love or a cry for love. It is the same within yourself and it is the same within your brother.

Whenever things would come up that seem to be termed "negative," seem not to be in a peaceful state, breathe and ask, "How can I see this in a new way? What is being called for?" It is always love, beloved ones. It is always a giving of yourself that is being called for in every relationship. It is a giving of your Self with a capital "S", which is truly a blessing unto you for then you know the wellspring of the Self that you are. For you have to dig deep and allow it to flow, and as it flows, you know that you have been blessed.

Look upon everything that transpires within your life as an act within the play. You are all grand actors upon the stage. You have picked up a script when you came into, as you would see, this lifetime and you have agreed that you would be upon this stage and you would act what the part was.

Now, it has not all been written out for you. You are great at improvisation. You have a choice in every moment to write your own lines within this script, and you do this moment by moment, for you are always free. You are free to look beyond the limitations of what the world would dictate to you. You are free to look beyond the limitations of what your parents and society have taught you. You are free to go beyond the books and the workshops that you have attended and the other friends who have shared freely with you of their insights. You are free in every moment to go within the Heart and to know the wisdom that you are, the unlimitedness that you are, and to soar with the wind. For that is truly the soul's desire: to soar with the wind.

We have spoken often that you are much more than the body that sits upon the chair and much more than the personality that you identify with in this time and place. There is only a small percentage of you that is focusing upon this part in the play. You are very busy, as you would see it, at this same time in other universes, upon other stages, expressing the grand villain, expressing the great warrior, expressing the great lover, expressing the Love that you are -- all of the infinite varieties of expression of the Mind of God. That is who you truly are. You are the Mind of God expressing upon this plane. You are the Love of the Heavenly Father shining your Light in this world for others to see and for yourself to know. Truly, you are a blessing.

And as you share your love with others, the miracle that occurs is that you know it to be yourself, for you cannot share with others what you are not already. It is within you. It is you. You are not separate. And as you allow this to come forth and to feel it in its fullness, then you, in your consciousness, are aware of the Love that you are and you bring this unto every relationship.

Now, there may be times in a relationship that the emotions that you are feeling within your own heart are so veiled that it takes a bit of time, as you would see it, to get through -- and yet the time, I say unto you, is but a twinkling of an eye.

All of you in this room have said that you want to get through these veils very quickly: "This is the time that I will come unto knowing that I am the Child of the Heavenly Father. I will claim my divine inheritance. I will know it in its fullness." And you have set yourself upon the path, which is, as you have felt already, very much accelerating. And the veils that were very thick in other lifetimes are now very, very thin. So when you see something coming up for you in front of you, it is not a boulder anymore. It is not the mountain, but it is the thinnest of gossamer and you may push it aside easily.

Relationships are a grand blessing unto you and to the one who is in front of you. Each time a person comes and shares a path with you, it is an opportunity for you to see the healing that you are. It is an opportunity for you to extend what you would see as healing unto another. And as you extend the healing, it is not only one heart that is healed, but two -- and then it expands like the ripples upon a pond and touches others. This is why the awakening is accelerating: because of what you would call the ripple effect, touching others.

Never hide yourself from anyone. Never turn away from any opportunity to express love in any way: the smile, the eyes that say, "Yes, I understand," the arm that goes around someone's shoulder and says, "I have been there, too. I understand." Sometimes just standing in quietness with another one until they are able to come to a place of peace. Sometimes just reaching out the hand and taking another one's hand just to let them know that you are there for them -- the simplest of gestures. And even if this one would not be in a place of accepting that love, stand and be the Love that you are. Do not turn away, for what one is calling for at that time is love -- even though they may not allow themselves to accept it.

So do not turn away, but just stand and love in quietness. And as you extend unto that one the opportunity to be in peace where they will feel your peace, you give them a grand opportunity to come to the place of healing: not only healing of the body -- which will happen -- but healing of the emotions and of the Spirit. The healing of the body, as you know, will follow the healing of the emotions and of the Spirit, the soul.

So stand in quietness and in love and breathe, and extend to others the peace that you are. Even if they are in grand violence of throwing out the emotions and seemingly pouring it forth to the universes, if you stand in confidence and in your peace, they will come unto a place where they will return to peace themselves. It is the grand gift that you give unto others -- and in the giving unto others, you are also the receiver. Is this not true?

It's true.

Very true. I thank you.

In what would be termed marriage, it would seem that two have come together in a special relationship where they would see each other as being special and set apart from the others. This is the first step where one can recognize in another the Love that you are. And you find it so kindled because you feel it to be outside of yourself, and you feel the love welling up inside and it has to be shared with another. Know you that that Love is you. That is the Love that you are. And as you share that love with another -- and you know how it feels to fall, as they say, to fall in love -- that feeling of grand exuberance where you cannot wait to see another, to share time, to share activities, to share the Love that you are with them, even the smallest details of what you would see as the daily living, to share with another -- this is the first step in recognizing the Love that you are, and it is a grand blessing. A grander blessing comes forth from that one when you are able to see that the two of you are journeying upon the path together and that you are equals. You are the Light and the Love of the Heavenly Father, and so are your brothers and your sisters. And you will see yourself joined with that one, as it would be, as a team that is extending the Love that you are unto others, and you will see the Christ not only in that special one, but in all others who come and share your path -- either, as they say, crossing your path or journeying with you -- you will see the Christ Light in them as well.

And you come unto a place where you recognize that it is not needed to have a special relationship, for all relationships are special when you look upon them in the Light of the Christ that you are. It is part of what I have called the expanded awareness, of knowing the Child of the Heavenly Father that you are and that your brother and your sister also are.

Many in your world would look unto relationships and to marriage for the fulfillment of needs, of aspects that they would feel were perhaps lacking or missing, and they would look unto another to fill that seeming need. Know you that no other can fill a seeming need because there is not the need. You are whole and perfect as your Father created you to be. The only thing that you would need, perhaps, to do is to recognize it within yourself, but it is not that another one seemingly outside of you can fulfill this for you. It is your own recognition of the wholeness, of the holiness, that you are.

This is why so many of your brothers and sisters try one relationship and it works for awhile, according to what they feel the criteria would be for working, and then it is discarded and on to another relationship, hoping to get from someone else what is seemingly not there -- and yet, all is there -- and they will go from relationship to relationship, always seeking, always asking another to, "Please fill in what I see as being the holes," as if they would be a piece of Swiss cheese. And yet, your holiness is not one of having the holes of the Swiss cheese. Your holiness is the wholeness that you already are.

It is not that you need a special person to share this with. For when one comes unto the realization of the Child of the Heavenly Father that you are and knows the total wholeness, unlimitedness, of the joy that you are, you will go forth and share this freely with all. It will not matter whether they are, as you would see, attached or unattached, whether they are tall or short or fat or thin or seemingly wise or sensitive or whatever. You will go upon your path because you are so full of the Love that you are that you cannot contain it, and you will give unto others freely because you know that as you pour it out, more is given to you because that is who you are.

That is what is called the Holy Relationship, because you know that you are holy and you know that your brother and sister is holy, and you share of yourself because you cannot contain it. You cannot hold it back. So that it does not matter whether they be of certain dimensions or certain specifications. You go freely and you share the smile with everyone as the child smiles and plays upon the playground. For that is who you are: you are the Child of the Heavenly Father and you are playing upon the playground in every instant. Go freely and share of who you are.

Many have asked me about soulmates and, "Is there a special one, a special soulmate, either in body for me at this time or somewhere in the unseen realms who will come into a body and be with me and will complete me?" You do not need what you would see as a soulmate to complete you. You are already all that is.

Yes, you have a soulmate. It is the one sitting next to you. It is the one behind you. It is the one in front of you. It is the one that you talk to in your times of meditation, of prayer, the times when you speak unto one who would be as a friend -- perhaps you can see them, perhaps you do not -- but one that you would speak to as a friend. That is your soulmate. That is you.

Now, you may name this one a special name and you may look for this one in bodily form, and I say unto you: when you come to the place of realizing the Child of the Heavenly Father that you are and you are so full of the Love that you are that you cannot contain it, you will find your soulmate in front of you immediately. And as you share your love with them, you will share it then with the next one and the next one and the next one. There will be no lack of love in your life because you will be outpouring the Love that you are.

So yes, there is a soulmate for you, but the secret -- which is not hidden from you -- the secret is the soulmate is you, for all minds and all hearts are joined and you are not separate. Although you would see the bodies to be separate, the hearts are not separate and the Love that you are is so full that it is felt by the trees as you pass by, by the slugs that you talk to, by your brothers and sisters that you see in the grocery store and at the gas station, everyone that you meet. You are your own soulmate. And if it pleases you to talk unto a soulmate, know that this is all well and good, but know that that soulmate is not separate from you. That soulmate is you.

That is why you can speak with grand ease unto a soulmate: because that soulmate is ever with you. It could not be otherwise. That soulmate is you. That soulmate rides with you upon the horse, upon the wind in grand joy, and that soulmate shares everything with you, knows everything with you, because that soulmate is you -- closer to you than the body. So as you feel the joy of the soulmate, know that you are that joy. Where else is that joy welling up? It is not somewhere, as you would see it, in the ethers, but it is within your own heart. It is you.

So when ones would ask of me, "Is a soulmate real?" Yes, that soulmate is as real as you are -- and I assure you that you are real. And I do not speak here of the body and the personality. I speak here of the Love that you are and the energy that you are. Very much real.

Each time you come together and you share the hugs, you are expressing the Light that you are and the Love that you are. You can feel it in physical form. And as you feel that energy, then you know that you are not limited to what you feel as being the skin and the body. Bodies are the vehicle of the ego to say unto you that "This is all there is. This is who the one known as Judith would be: in this body." And yet, this is not true.

Bodies can be seen to have boundaries, can be seen to be individualized, to be in boxes, as it would be. Bodies can never join. Bodies can share with each other touching, but bodies can never join. Even in the most physical act of joining, it is not a true joining. The energy that you are, the Love that you are, cannot help but be joined.

Whenever you are in a relationship -- and this is any time that you see someone in front of you, you are in a relationship, however momentarily it may be -- whenever you are in a relationship, what you are feeling is your own consciousness. It is what you are bringing forth to that relationship. And it always is with grand freedom that you may be whatever you want to be. You may share your Light freely with others and be the blessing to others that you are, and as you do that, know that you have turned on many other's Lights because they have seen your Light and the Love that you are.

Think not in times of what you would call despair, depression, think not that your life has small meaning. You have touched many in what you would see as just this lifetime -- and I assure you this is not the only lifetime you are acting in at this moment. You are very active.

All relationships offer you the opportunity to be consciously the Christ that you are. All relationships. Each moment, as it comes up in front of you, offers you a choice of, "Where will I be? Will I be in love or will I be in fear? Will I be in love or will I be coming from a place where I need to prove my separateness?" Each time that you choose for love, you allow the veil to become even thinner, and you walk through it as the molecules go through in osmosis, back and forth. It is that simple and that easy as you express the Love that you are.

Each moment as you find yourself in front of someone, be very present with that person or with that animal, with that blade of grass, with that tree, with whatever is front of you. Be very present with it and know that you are the Light and the Love that has manifested it.

Even the one that you would see in front of you and you would say is another individual -- you are manifesting what you are perceiving them to be within your own consciousness. Do you see how powerful you are? Each moment is its own choice to be in love or to be in constriction. And what I have seen with all of you is that you are choosing more and more to be in the love. It becomes addictive, does it not?

It does.

Yes, a grand addiction. And each time that you choose for love, the chains of constriction become thinner. It is, as you would see, strengthening the muscles as you choose for love each time. Each time something would come up in front of you and it is right there in front of the nose to see, and as you breathe and you take one step back from it, you are allowing the Love that you are to rush in to that situation. Act always from the center of peace. Return yourself unto the Heart -- which is your center of peace -- first, and then speak and then act as you would be guided to act.

Relationships are a vehicle that you have manifested for yourself upon this plane to mirror for you your belief about yourself and to see the Love that you are reflected in another who would seemingly be separate from you, and yet, they are not. How can you understand what another one is going through if you are not connected? You very much understand what another one is feeling. And yes, it is because you have experienced it either, as you would see it, in this lifetime or another lifetime. It is also because you are connected. There is no separation. As you are allowing the veils to become as gossamer, you are able to tune into others even without the words and to know what they are feeling, and to allow the shutters of the heart to be flung wide open and to share with them the Love that you are.

Yes, through the breath. The breath is so simple and so powerful. It is so healing. It takes only one deep breath to reconnect with the center of your being -- at least to begin the process, right? And then to take another.

In every relationship be the Love that you are. All of you are grand flowers in the garden of our Heavenly Father. You shine with a radiance that is beautiful to behold. With the physical eyes it is as you would have pulled the shades down: there is not that much that you see of the Light. And yet, it can be seen: the aura, as it is termed, around a body can be seen with the physical eyes. And know you that you are much brighter than any aura that the physical eyes can see. Look with the eyes of Spirit and behold the Light that you are.

In every relationship look for the Light that is in it. For there you will find yourself. There you will find the joy that is just waiting to be shared freely with others. You are truly holy. You lack for nothing. You need no one else to be in your life to make you whole.

Your world has taught you that to be happy there must be a companion, that there must be someone to share this with. And this longing comes from the desire to share from the heart the Love that you are. There is nothing wrong in that desire. But it does not mean that it has to be one special person. It means that it must be shared with whoever is in front of you at that moment.

Pour freely the Love that you are upon whoever is in front of you. You are the Love of the Heavenly Father. Share it freely, because as you share it, you are in-filled with the flow of that Love. You cannot be without it, because you are the Love. But for mankind to experience this and to know this, it must be expressed. This is why I have said unto you many times to extend the love: because in the extension, then you know the Love that you are. It is not for you to sit upon a meditative cushion somewhere in a cave and to be the Love, which of course, you are. It is for you to be out in what you would see as your world, sharing the Love that you are freely with others, healing others by the Love that you are.

Your world cries out to you for healing, for love. Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to be the Love that you are and to share it so freely that others will know the Love that they are. Do not be afraid to touch others, to love others, to physically be in touch with others and to say, "I love you. I love you because I know who you are. And I know who you are because I know who I am." Be bold; you can say this to others.

Never hold back expressing the Love that you are. Go freely and share the Love that you are. Your world is crying out for it. That is why it is such a grand joy for me to come and be with you in these moments this way, because I can share freely with you. I can touch again, hand to hand, and express the Love that I am and that you are. And yes, the bodies cannot join but the hearts join.

Truly, does your heart not jump for joy? Yes. That is who you are. Go and share that with others with an exuberance that is, as your world would say, turned on. It is time. Share it with everyone that you meet and share freely. Every relationship is a love relationship when you allow yourSelf to be given freely.

Your world would teach you that there are certain things that one must not do. You would not walk up to another one and do what I am doing right now if you did not know that one very well {running the fingers through the hair of a brother}. And yet, beloved brother, what do you feel when I do this? Do you not feel love? Do you not feel that I care? Do you not feel that there is energy that is exchanged that is of the Love energy?

Yes.

Yes. I love you with an everlasting love for I know who you are.

Love is contagious. It is beautiful for me to behold, as I smile and some of you will sit there and you will be very contained, and then all of a sudden there is a little smile that just comes and starts to happen, and it is contagious. You are the joy of your Heavenly Father. You cannot contain it.

I have quit trying.

You are a delight.

I love you with an everlasting Love because that is who I am. It has been written in your Holy Scriptures that I am all Love, that I am the Son of God, and that I came and was incarnate. And I say unto you that you are also the Son of God expressing incarnate. You are the Love of God as well. You are loved with an everlasting Love, for that is who you are.

Enjoy the celebration this evening, a celebration of love, for you have put this as an element upon your stage in this play, as it would be, to enjoy. Share the Love that you are freely. Share the hugs, and know that I am always with you.

Truly, you are the Child of our Heavenly Father and you need do nothing more than be the Love that you are.

So be it.
