

Conscious Co-Creation: Miracles

2000-03-10

Beloved and holy and only child of our Heavenly Father, Child of the one Source, Child of light divine. That is who you are. Take it deeply within the consciousness and contemplate what that means, child of Light from before time began. A most radiant being. Not contained within the body. Not contained even as you would feel around the body. Contained only in the mind of God which is infinite. So how speak we of containment?

In this evening I would speak with you about where you are in your journey, most wonderful place, the journey of the awaking holy Child. We have spoken how this is the year of conscious co-creation and we have spoken that this will be and is already the year when you begin to understand, truly understand that you are the creators of all that which you experience.

You come to the place where you take responsibility even for the events and circumstances in your life that you would say that you did not want. You take responsibility and not to judge. Last time when we met in this way we spoke about forgiveness for indeed as you will begin to take responsibility for knowing that you are creating in each and every moment that which you experience, the voice of separated ego can be heard very loudly, very strongly suggesting that if you are so powerful why do you create such a mess?

And we spoke that that comes from a place of judgment that would look upon certain events and certain circumstances and say, "Those are wonderful." And other events and circumstances you would look upon and you would say that "They are not wonderful. They are disastrous. I don't want to be in a place and experience such things. How could I be the creator of what I see?"

And so we spoke last time when we met about forgiveness, giving love for. That is what forgiveness truly is, giving love for, in place of judgment. And being the beholder. Not the person who judges, not the one who rushes in with habitual reaction and says, "This is good. This is not so good." But being the beholder, to stand back and to ask to see with holy vision. To see the whole picture. Not to just focus on one aspect of it, but to see how everything fits together to serve the atonement. For indeed everything does serve the atonement, the at-one-ment, the realization that I and my Father are one. Not just I as one Jeshua, but you. You are one with the Father otherwise you would not be. You are life expressing. You are consciousness. You are and the Isness of you is an extension of the Father. Not just a creation. We have spoken other times that when you talk about the creation, it implies a creator and a creation and a separation. There is no separation. You are an extension — a better way to put it — you are an extension of the Father in this point of focus, this lifetime, this day, this evening, right now. Everywhere you go you are the Father in expression.

So we spoke last time we met to live in forgiveness not because there has been something that has been done wrong and it has to be forgiven, but to live in love. To be the beholder and to look upon everything that happens with love, with a certain detachment, certain impersonality where you stand back and this takes some discipline, some practice, to stand back and to look at everything as it weaves itself together in a divine holy dance. For truly that is what is occurring. And not to judge quickly, to withhold judgment and when you do judge to judge righteously. In other words, to have a discernment that comes from holy vision.

Now in this evening we will go on with understanding what is conscious co-creation? When we speak of co-creation who are you co-creating with? Good question. You have heard the term, being a co-creator of your reality and you are, but that implies that again there is a separation, there is you and there is some co-creator somewhere else.

Now, in truth what you are doing is being the creator. You are drawing from what you yet see to be somewhat separate from you, somewhat distant from you. You are drawing from the divine holy being that you are. You have termed this sometimes "The higher Self, the extended Self, the holy Self." Now there is no separation in truth for you are again a flow of creative energy. But there are times, many times within a certain belief system which the collective holds in this day and time that says you are here living a lifetime and this is all there is, this point of focus. And you may pray unto the masters, the guides, the teachers, the angels, you pray unto me, you pray unto the Father, you pray even to the holy Self of you and you say, "Give me wisdom. Give me guidance," and all the while you are being guided by the Self of you – with the capital "S". So when we speak of co-creation it is to allow you to recognize that even though you see yourself to be an individual you are creating from the higher Self, the creative divine Self of you as a flow of energy.

When we use the term co-creator, it is as a first step. Not the whole of it, but the first step in awakening to understand, "I am more than just what I see here. I am more than what I feel my personality to be. I am more than what my brothers and sisters see and think that I am, have told me that I am. I am a co-creator with my Self" – Capital "S" – "the divine holy being of my Self."

Now as we have spoken in this evening, truly once you have recognized that this individuality that you see as yourself is not all of you that there is, we can drop the "co-" part and just speak of being the creator.

In this year of conscious creation, of taking responsibility and feeling good about it, there are going to be many changes even in this year. You have had prophecies, most wonderful prophecies that you have brought forth. You individually and you as a collective, prophecies which have said that by a certain year in this new millennium you are going to see heaven on earth. Now the timing has been set differently by different prophecies. There is one which speaks of 2012, there is one that speaks of 2020. Are these prophecies true? Are they going to come true? As it is seen now, yes. Will it happen before 2012? Yes. Even so, because in this year of taking responsibility for all of your creations. You are moving into a most wonderful place of miracles. A place, a willingness to behold miracles.

Now you have many miracles which are recorded in your holy scriptures and it has been said by many and you have even said it in other lifetimes when you were the authorities, the priests, the rabbis, the teachers, you have even said that the age of miracles was long gone and past. That the miracles which happened in Jeshua's lifetime and in the disciples and apostles' lifetimes those miracles were most wonderful but that age has been gone. the time everyday. And with this year which you have decreed to be a most changeful year, you have brought with you a willingness to see miracles. To behold even in everyday the miracles all around you and to take responsibility for those miracles.

I will set for you a piece of homework. Everyday in the next four weeks of your timing, take out a piece of the paper, your notebook paper, whatever, a piece of paper and everyday write down one miracle which you have seen in that day. Something that worked out, well yes, two or three if you want to, it doesn't need to be limited to one, but something that has happened in that day that you didn't expect, you didn't think was going to work out so well. Something that you hoped and it did come true.

Write down, keep track of at least one miracle in everyday and you will be amazed when you come to the end of your four weeks and before that even, to see what is happening in a life which you have said was, well it's just a normal humdrum life. I just get up in the morning. I do what's necessary and before I know it it's bed-time and I start all over again.

Record the miracle even of waking up in the morning. Record the miracle of moving a hand, a finger. Record the miracle of how you look as you look in your looking glass, the miracle of a smile. Even if you don't feel like smiling, do the clown face. It will get the juices running.

Record a miracle in everyday and begin to think about the miracle which is you. The miracle even in the willingness to incarnate and to be a point of light in this reality in this day and time.

Know you that there are many that you call unseen and yet they can be seen, who give you great respect and honor because you are the ones who have said out of great courage, "I will take again the incarnation, the physical body and I will walk in a world that yet believes in the possibility of darkness and sickness, ill health, sorrow and loss. I will walk in that world and I will allow my love and my light to shine."

You have had great courage. You say, "Well I don't feel so courageous. I think about my challenges and sometimes I think how am I going to get through any of the challenges?" And yet you have many around you who give to you great respect and honor because you have had the courage to walk once again in a world that is not the most loving. You have had the courage to bring your love to transform it.

so in this year of conscious creation, already you have the willingness to behold a new world. This is what a good percentage of the collective consciousness has brought even into your new millennium. There have been expectations, hope, that with the turning of the time into a new millennium that there will be changes. And with that hope and that willingness to look for them, what you seek you will find. It is a very true principle.

You have tested this for yourself, what you would seek in days when your feeling rather good and you look and you see good things all around you, you don't give yourself exactly credit but you have brought forth that which you are experiencing.

Other days you don't feel all that good about yourself or what's going on and there seems to be a real downer of a day and everything that happens in that day seems to pile up and to be a disaster and you become sometimes like my beloved friend and teacher, the one known as Judith and she says, "Well this day hasn't been all that great. I'll have to go to bed tonight, sleep on it. Tomorrow will be a better day." I have said to her, well if it isn't all that great and you don't feel that great about it midway through the day, take a nap. She says it doesn't work that way. Well why not? Take a nap. Start over. Who says?

As you are willing to look for the miracles they will be in your experience. As you are willing to walk with an open heart and an open mind, you will perceive much beauty and love around you to the place where you will feel yourself transformed, truly transformed.

Already you are able to cast your mind back what you would see as a year ago, even several years if you want to do that, and you will see how you have changed in the time interval. You will see how, you will say, "Well I have grown, I have become aware," which is true. You are growing in your awareness, in your remembrance of the divinity of you.

This is going to continue and it is going to grow even more rapidly because now you know that the changes can be and that miracles can happen and do happen.

Now I would suggest to you as you are looking for the miracles that you become a miracle. How do you do this? It is by suspending judgment. It is by suspending the habitual reaction to whatever happens and standing in the place of the beholder for a moment and longer.

And when you are in the place of the beholder, then to choose anew. A new perspective, a new way of looking at whatever is happening. A new way of responding to someone. When you are in conversation with someone and they are recounting to you some ill, something that has happened that doesn't seem to be of the highest and best, you have a usual answer, a usual perspective that you come from. You have developed this, this lifetime and other lifetimes as well. But I ask of you, in this time of miracles to be the miracle and to respond differently. Give the unexpected answer and see how that then changes the dance. It will work miracles for you and for the other one that you are in conversation with because they are telling you a certain scenario and they know, so they think, what your response is going to be and they are ready for it.

Have you noticed when you are in conversation with someone part of you is listening to what they are saying and part of you is already rehearsing what you are going to say to them. They are doing the same thing as they listen to your response so that only part of you is really listening. Only part of you is being the beholder and truly listening.

Allow yourself not to rehearse but just to be with that one as they are speaking and then to take a deep breath, there is no hurry, to take a deep breath and to respond differently from a true perspective. You will be guided. You will know. You will draw from the higher Self of you, the extended Self of you and there will be new perspective and it will change the dance. Because in that moment what you will have done is to do some improv and when there is improv everyone has to scurry a bit to see where you are, what the next dance step is, how to respond and it changes everything. Have fun with it.

Be willing to look for the miracles, record the miracles so that you are aware that truly everyday of every lifetime and you can go back if you want to to other lifetimes as well, record the miracle of those lifetimes. What you know you have accomplished in those lifetimes. What you came through that has brought you to this place in this lifetime. Record the miracles so that you see what a miracle you are in expression. Contemplate possible miracles you would like to see. Throw the doors of the mind wide open and play with, "If I were to create a miracle what would I do? What would it look like? How would it feel? Who else would be involved in it? Where would it be? How would it be?" And play with the miracle even to the place where separated ego says, "Oh well, you are only play acting. It's just imagination and you know that there are limitations. You know that the miracle which you would want to manifest it is just a pipe dream. It is just as smoke that goes up in the air. It has no substance to it." And the separated ego says, "Okay you can have your pipe dream. Have fun with it but don't expect that anything is going to come of it."

But I suggest to you as you are the creators, expect that which you would create as miracle. Expect that you will see it manifest and leave the door open again for improv. For as you will set out with an idea of what you want to manifest as a miracle, you will find yourself adding to it, subtracting from it, honing it a bit on one side, on the other side, shaping it a bit as ideas come to you. New revelations come to you. So leave the door open for improv. You might as well because there is going to be changes anyway. So you might as well give the conscious permission for the improv for it's going to happen. And be again the beholder of the miracle which you would manifest and see how it takes you in a most wonderful experience and expression.

Now you may have an idea in your mind of how you want the miracle to work out. In fact, it is necessary as you are starting out to think about a miracle. It is necessary that you have certain desires that you want. Allow yourself to be clear about those desires. Allow yourself then to go inside of those desires. How does it feel to be inside that desire? Now that sounds weird. Go inside an idea? Go inside a desire? Yes. In other words allow yourself to be one with it and listen to what it will tell you. Because the idea in the first place, the miracle which you want to manifest it is a desire, it is of the Father. It is holy idea.

Now, often times how you try to structure it within the confines of this reality — with a small "r" — you only get part of the holy idea because this reality has said that there are certain limitations to everything and that there is a very deeply held belief in duality, good and evil and that you are only allowed just so much good. And if you have your quota of good then the rest of it is not so good.

You all have had lifetimes, you have re-experienced it in this lifetime knowing a day or perhaps a streak of what you call luck and a feeling, a sort of magic subtle feeling in the back of your mind of, "Oh oh, when is this going to end? It is too good to be true." That comes from the deeply held belief in duality that good itself has to be limited.

But as you go inside the desire and you ask of it, "What will you tell me?" You will find that the limitations dissolve and there is much of evolution, development, growth, even process that comes forth. Say for instance you have a beloved family member and you want the company of that one to be with you. And they are going through certain process of change in the body.

You can take for example if you have a beloved pet and you want this beloved pet to be with you always and the beloved pet perhaps is going through physical challenge and you say, "Well if I could manifest a miracle I would do healing on this pet so that this pet will always be the small puppy, the kitten, the young one full of life, full of vim and vigor all the time. So if I were to be able," and it starts out you say those word, "If I were," because you don't believe you are. "But if I could manifest a miracle here and do a healing that would be so wonderful." And you begin to play with what is healing. What do I truly desire? And you go inside the desire. "Why do I desire this? What do I desire to accomplish?"

Go inside the desire and you begin to have revelation that in truth the body of the beloved pet is but raiment that is put on for a length of time. And the love which you share with the beloved pet or the love that you share with a beloved family member, knows no bounds, knows no containment within the body. And in truth never can be taken from you and never will be taken from you.

Now there has been belief passed down from generation to generation that if you couldn't see the body being activated then that one was lost to you. And you felt that they must be gone and you could not communicate with them. Now you are making steps to see that ones who have laid down the body are light the same as you. Their consciousness the same as you and consciousness, life, light, does not die, does not cease to be.

The only thing that has happened in the belief system down through the generations is that you have put the wall in front of yourself and you have said, "Well if I don't see it, it can't be there." You have closed your eyes. In truth those ones in all cases become even more alive, more dynamic, more radiant when they do not have to focus upon the specifics of a body. Holds true for beloved pets as well.

Beloved pets, the animals, wonderful examples of love walking on four feet. Most wonderful examples who come to teach you, to remind you of love. The animals are not attached to the body the same as you have come attached to the physical being. They activate it for awhile and when it is time to release it they have no problem releasing. And when they want to activate another body they do so because they know they are alive and they come again. And you have had experience of having beloved pets and one will lay down the body and after a time period you perhaps have another pet that comes to you and you say, "This one reminds me of...", well of course, it is that one come back to you again. Oftentimes that will happen.

Sometimes you say, "Well it is such a miracle but this one is very much like Fluffy, or very much like Rex. This is very much like...", and they come and they show you life is a miracle itself. It is ongoing forever.

So in this year you will allow yourselves to look for the miracles in everyday. You will allow yourself to be the miracle. To take a new perspective, to breathe, most wonderful space of freedom, that deep breath that allows all of the pieces to be rearranged if you want to and have a new perspective. To allow yourself to be the miracle. And then to know truly that you can work miracles.

The miracles which are recorded in your holy scriptures were ones that were done in agreement with myself and with the ones who were willing to know a miracle, the healings that happened. Now there were many times when I offered the energy of the Father, the holy energy of remembrance to ones and for various reasons they did not accept the energy at that time. It is okay. They accepted it in what you call another lifetime. Nothing is ever lost.

Those times are not recorded in your holy scriptures but the miracles of healing, the miracles of manifestation where something seemed to happen that was out of the expected. Those were times when there was agreement, a connection if you will, to remember the Allness and to live in that space of wholeness.

So, I have spoken at great length a greeting to you. I did not mean to make a lecture of it but these have been thoughts which you have been asking me to put forth. This year of your conscious creation we are going to be looking at different aspects of what it means to be a creator, of what it means to be conscious and how this applies to everyday life and how it transforms. But enough already.

How are you in this evening? Are you awake?

Yes.

I have put you to sleep?

No.

Oh, very good. Very good. Have you come with a topic that you wish to discuss? A topic that you have been mulling over this past four weeks in your time? Yes.

I just want to ask about what you mentioned. You said in the healing there was agreement between you and that other person. Was that agreement before the reincarnation even?

Yes. But it doesn't have to be. You call come into an incarnation with a willingness and an openness. In other words it is not a script that is written in concrete. You come with certain propensities borne of other lifetimes and beliefs of other lifetimes, but there is an openness, a willingness if you will, that can be acted upon.

And you are saying the energy you offered then if not accepted then could be accepted in the next lifetime?

Yes, exactly.

Without any prompting. You know you're not there in the next lifetime or how would that world?

I am not the only one who has ever facilitated the remembrance of the energy of life. So if it would be a scenario where you would not see me as an individuality interacting with this one there would be another agent, you will call it, another one would be as catalyst for it.

This is not to say that I have not popped in and out of many lifetimes. In other words many lifetimes you have had you have walked the face of our Holy Mother the earth different personality, different form of body and I have been with you all of those lifetimes. Sometimes as you would see activating the body, the most wonderful times when we have walked together. Other times when I have taken upon myself the physicality for an hour, a day, perhaps even a fortnight of time and walked with you. Sometimes what you would call a chance meeting.

I know myself to be unlimited. I know myself to be able to activate a body within this time frame and even as we speak I am activating bodies in other dimensions in other time frames. It is a lot of fun to do.

Before we started, Bill was talking about another machine this guy's invented that healed a person's cancer.

Yes.

Now was it the machine that cured the cancer or was it just another tool and this keeps coming up time after time? I just want to check you out one more time.

Yes. Machines, technology, techniques, very important within the collective belief. It is held that if you can see something, if you can hold it you can believe in its power. Now in truth it has only the power that you give it. But, you do give it power and it is mighty.

So is it the machine that heals? Yes, through the power of the belief flowing through it. You see there is not separation. You cannot even say that something such as this musical instrument. You see it sitting here and say well it is just a piece of structure. In truth it is energy. Coalesced to a certain point where you say it is solid. But it not in truth, solid. There is much of space in the molecules. There is much of space and the energy that is in that space, where does that energy come from?

It comes from the Father.

Exactly, it comes from divine Mind, from the Father. Are you separate from divine Mind?

No.

You cannot be. You wouldn't be here. So the energy that is flowing through this musical instrument, through this piece of furniture on which I sit, through the piece of furniture that you sit upon even this structure of building. The energy is of you. It is of divine Mind, divine as you are. It is a flow of energy which you have said, miracle — you may write it down. You have said is going to take certain form and it is going to serve you in a certain way.

Know you that there are intelligences in this room which you do not see but they are using this space as well as you are using this space. And the intelligences are structuring for themselves a reality which you would be most surprised to see and yet it is all happening at the same time, same even space, different reality. And it is all of the same energy of divine Mind.

This is why as you are going deeper into understanding the power of the beholder, you will come to a place of great humility and then a place of great laughter and joy. For you will begin to see how wonderful you are and how wonderful even this point of focus that you call yourself as an individuality, how wonderful that point is within the whole of what the holy child is experiencing and expressing.

You have begun a most wonderful journey of awareness. We have spoken of this in other previous times when we have been together, you have come from a point of density, a point where you identified so closely with just a minuscule expression of divine energy and you knew it and then you had a thought, a divine thought planted there from before you began the journey into density, you had a thought that said, "What more? What more is there?" And with that thought you began to rise up to expand, to look about, to see what more is there of me?

Now you didn't couch it in those words, but you wanted to know what more is there? The of me came later as you began to realize how powerful, how wonderful you as the holy Self are. So there is that place, most wonderful place to be of great humility and then great joy.

Many of you have gone through lifetimes, many of your brothers and sisters even in this day and time in a lifetime where you feel you are not worth very much. Life itself seems so tenuous. Seems that it can be snuffed out so quickly. Seems sometimes not to have purpose and many of the brothers and sisters despair that there could be a God, that there could be a Father, that there could be an energy that would care about them.

For they have been told by the parents, by the family, by the peers that they were not worth anything that they were always doing things wrong. And they have been if it was not in outward words they have been told by the behavior of being ignored that they were not worthy of any one's attention or love. That feeling is rampant in your world in this time and you are the ones who can turn it around. You are the ones who are in process of turning it around because you have said in the dark night of your soul you have said, "There must be something more. I am not willing to stay in this place of darkness any longer." And you have at that point, taken hold of the divine energy of you, the great Self of you no longer willing to abide in despair and darkness.

You are the ones who are transforming the world. You are the ones who are able to do the healing, physical healing yes, that is important for ones to experience for oftentimes that is where they will start with their awakening. For if the body is calling out to them they cannot hear the still small voice within because the body is yelling too loudly. And if you can bring them to —and you can — a place of peace, a place where for a moment the body is still. They can begin then to claim, to lay hold of the power of Isness, the power of the divinity of them and to know that they are more than just the body. More than just an individuality even.

There is a tendency that has been held for such a long long time. It comes from the identification with the creations, your creations. A tendency to believe that value is in the appearance. Value is in the body. If the body ceases one is gone. Value even in the appearance of how you structure the body, how you clothe it, how you carry it, how you act, appearance. And yet you are moving now into a most divine place of looking beyond appearance knowing the healing that comes beyond appearances. And you are the ones that can speak those words of hope and truth to the brothers and sisters to say to the mother who has to bury a small one. A small one whom she sent off to school in the morning and did not get to see in the evening. You can say to that mother that the small one had purpose in this lifetime. That the small one agreed that there would be a certain role and that the small one was not attached to the body the same as when you have more of the years and you begin to think that the body is so wonderful.

The small ones are much more as your beloved pets, they know from whence they have come and they know where they go and they know that they can come back and they do. This small one that has been in your news media this week is already making plans to activate the body again, to serve again.

What about the small one who seemed to be the activator of the events? That one also agreed to play a certain part. That one is asking for love, to know value. That one carries a heavy burden and it is not the first lifetime that this one has carried a heavy burden like that. It is a familiar role. This one has often volunteered to play the part of one who does not see value in himself or herself as the role has been played sometimes. To the point that this one has almost forgotten the master which he is.

Now it is not truly lost to this small one, the master, but it has to be, there has to be a catalyst, someone to believe in him. Do you have to be present to interact with this small one? In truth, no. Your world vision would say yes, you have to get on the plane and you have to go to be in this one's physical presence and speak the right words and perhaps hug this one and give him the right discipline and so forth.

But that is not necessary as you will hold this small one in your meditations and you will speak to the master of this one. Not the small one as he sees himself to be as individual. There is much armoring. But speak to the master of this one, "I know who you are. Come forth." It is the same as I said to Lazarus, "Come forth." And you can do that with this small one.

Not only can but I would suggest very strongly that you do in your quiet times. Think of this one. Speak to the master of this one. Tell him it is time to come forth. To nurture the small one. And you can do this with other ones who are not so small in stature and ones who have grown in stature and yet within they feel lost as the lost child.

Now, beloved one, did I answer your question? Seems we have gone on a tangent.

Is there another topic that we would address in this beginning part?

I don't know where to start. There have been so many things happening. What would be a good reply and I know there's one you have given in the scripture to one who if they would observe a buddhist doing miraculous things would say they did it by the power of Satan? And this has happened just within a few days. I opted to say nothing in fact that whole conversation made me feel like I was juggling through a mine field.

And yet beloved one, you know that the conversation was not only with the words which are spoken audibly. You had much conversation going on and that is well and good. It is not always necessary to speak outright. The words of your heart are mighty. Always there is conversation that you are engaging upon with ones whether you speak within the audible words or not and in truth the other ones who receive that which you speak.

Consciousness is as a stream. There is the top level of it. This is what you often attend to, but below that top level, the surface, there is much that rides and runs underneath. And as certain things are being said you were responding in your own way, your own conversation. You were saying to this one, "You know that is not true. You know that there is much more happening here." And at the deeper level of the stream of consciousness there was a meeting. You do not have to trouble yourself whether you speak the right words. You do not have to try to save another one or get them around to your way of thinking. Allow the words of your heart to be cast into the stream. They will be in time, they will be received.

You have yet the belief, the collective belief that there are many individualities all separate. There are many belief systems all separate and that one belief system depending on who was holding it, is much more superior to all the rest of them. And yet all of the belief systems lead to the atonement. You have certain examples of the spokes of a wheel that all come to the center no matter how far apart on the circumference of the wheel each point seems to be they all come together in the center and it is true of all of belief systems no matter how far apart they seem to be they all come together in serving the atonement.

So you do not have to worry about saving other ones or righting a certain situation. You have tried that. Many lifetimes you have tried that and you have reaped all kinds of rewards for it. Much of motivation for releasing the body in various horrendous ways.

But you have come to a certain place of allowance, certain place of beholding that says, "What you speak is not my truth. But I allow you to have it because I know that beneath the surface the energy of the divine runs deep and true and is one." So when other ones will speak to you that it is the work of the devil, that it is the work of something wrong, if there is guidance to say something, say. If there is guidance only to smile, smile because the conversation of the heart that has gone from heart to heart yes. You don't have to speak and you don't have to try to right everything.

It relieves you of a great burden. You see I have been cast into the role of being savior. Supposedly I came, I lived, I died to save all of the rest of you who don't know what you're doing. Well in truth, I cannot save you because you don't need saving. You are already saved. You are already holy, each and every one of you even the brothers and sisters who speak that they believe another way. Already they are precious in the sight of the Father. They are just living another adventure. You cannot save another one no matter how many words you speak, no matter how many miracles you might perform in front of them. They have to come to their own revelation whether it be this lifetime or another lifetime. So you don't have to worry about it. It takes a great heavy weight off your shoulders. All you are asked to do is to be the presence of love. To be the extension of the Father in this plane of reality. That is what you have agreed you will do. To walk lightly, to smile often and to live in joy and let the rest of it take care of itself.

So be it.
