Jeshua /Jesus Speaks about: SPRINGTIME

MARCH 2018

Beloved one, we are going to speak of springtime. In truth, you are looking forward to spring, but the springtime that we are going to talk about now is the springtime of your life. Truly you are living the springtime of your life, no matter how many years you have garnered to yourself. You are going to say, “Well, Jeshua, I have X number of years behind me. How can I be in the springtime of my life?”

It has to do with attitude. It has to do with the excitement of finding new perceptions. As you will be reading, as you will be discussing with brothers and sisters, as you will be watching on your big screen, you are going to be taking in new ideas and asking of yourself, “What does this mean? Does this really speak to me? Is there a resonance, or is it just something that confuses me?”

So, as you have seen, the seeds that you have been planting earlier in this lifetime are coming up. They are coming up through the soil of the darkness that for a while you lived in because you were focusing very much on the world and what needed to be at various stages in life. But now you have come to where the seedlings have come up through the crust, and they are growing in the Light of your consciousness. They are opening and growing as you will focus upon them and ask, “What does this truly mean? What does this little seed have to share with me?” And as you will sit with a physical seed and ask of it, it will allow you to see all of life in that seed and the seedling as it comes up.

You are the ones who are interested in knowing more. Some of the brothers and sisters have enough to take the mind and keep up with what they feel the activities of the world have to be, but you are one who has said, “Well, I will watch the drama of the world and I will see how it works out and what there is of humor in all of it, taking everything lightly, and then I will look to see the deeper meaning.” And truly, what you are looking for is love, to see how love flourishes and will nurture the little seedling.

You live in love every moment as you choose to consciously ask, “How can I see this differently? How can I see this in love? What is it truly showing me, this little seedling that seems so delicate, as it is a new thought, and yet it is very strong.” As you will nurture it, it will open itself to you and reveal more of life; not the world life, but the life that is truly of consciousness. And it will show you the resilience of love.

You have been nurturing new ideas. You have been playing with them. You enjoy reading the different texts

2018 SUMMER ADVANCE

We are so excited about the upcoming Summer Advance this year. It is as though all the energy that could not be used in the Winter Advance, which had to be cancelled, has transferred itself forward into July! The Summer Advance will be held Sunday, July 22, through Friday evening, July 27, here at the Solana Parkway Clubhouse in Sequim, Washington. The beginning weekend, July 22, is also the weekend of the Lavender Festival in Sequim, a very popular tourist attraction, so if you know you are coming, please arrange your accommodation plans SOON (a word to the wise).

The theme of this summer’s Advance is Actualizing the Interdimensional Self, The Way to Peace. Many of the presenters who would have shared their expertise with us at the Winter Advance will be with us in July, so that many of the topics of the Winter Advance will be expanded and extended into the interdimensional framework—exciting! And since the Summer Advance extends to a full week, new and exciting presenters will be with us. Plus, one of the mornings will be held on the mountain (Hurricane Ridge) as a base for lift-off into the Interdimensional Self (instruction by Jeshua/Sananda) (bring walking shoes). More to come on this in next month’s news.

Actualizing the Interdimensional Self, The Way to Peace will be to see what is in there to share with you and where the train of thought will take you. You jump aboard the train and go with it for a while to see what are at the various stations where it may pull in for a while. You ask, "What do you have to show me?"

As you sit with an idea, as you sit with the little seedling, it will flower, and you get to then smell the perfume, the consciousness of life, to take it to a place where you feel at One with all of the life of that flower. You come alive, as I have seen you do when there has been a new idea, and you have been playing with it and wondering, "Is this really true? Does this really resonate with me? What is it leading me to? What conclusion can I draw from it?"

And all of a sudden, quite literally, I see the Light come on. There is a moment when the Light dawns, and you say, "Oh, that is what is happening with this. I've been wondering about this for two decades or three or perhaps even longer. I have heard this said, but I have wondered about the meaning of a certain statement."

You have heard in the generational teaching what has been that interpretation, but you have said, "That does not really satisfy. There has to be something more than that." All of the teachings, whatever has been in the religious/philosophical train of thought that you have come up with in this lifetime, have more gifts to give to you. So you sit with them, and you take your text, perhaps, and you are reading a passage that you have read maybe fifty times or more, and you think, "Oh, is that what that means?"

Because the Light has come on. Perhaps someone has said something that is as a clue. Perhaps there is something out of the past that you have read or has been told you that now makes sense and sheds some light on things. You have tucked away in the back reaches of the mind, of the consciousness, some of the clues that will come forth in their time, just as the seedling comes forth. It gives you then something more to contemplate, to think about, and you get excited. I see you when you have time to do this. I see you get excited about something that perhaps a moment before really did not turn you on. All of a sudden the light goes on, and it is like, "Oh, I'd never thought about it that way."

So allow yourself to read, to study, to listen to the various CDs that you have. That is where your joy comes from. That is the springtime of your life, whenever you are willing to look at new things and look in a new way at maybe old ideas, old texts even that have come your way, and someone says, “Well, have you read such and such?” And you say, “Oh, yes, I’ve read that maybe two or three years ago, maybe even fifteen or fifty years ago. Yes, I know that one.”

Okay, take it and read it again for the first time; in other words, yes, you may have read it twenty years ago, but read it now again for the first time because you are in a different place. All of the teachings that you read two thousand years ago when you studied with me, all of the ancient manuscripts, ancient even in those days, where we read of the wisdom of ones who had come before us and had recorded the ideas, all of those ideas grow, develop into the seedling, into the branches of the seedling, into the flowers, into the place where that seedling becomes the bush, and then the bush becomes the tree. In other words, there is always more to be gleaned.

One of the things I would suggest that you give yourself is time to sit and breathe; five minutes. Remember how good it feels and how the body thanks you for the breath. Ones have asked me, “Please set out a procedure that I can follow for the breathing.” And I have said, “Breathing in and breathing out, breathing in and breathing out.” If you are breathing, you are doing it right. If you are not breathing, you may ask for another lifetime to do it over.

In other words, it does not have to be complicated. I was asked many times two thousand years ago and since that time. “Yeshu’a, what posture should I take to pray? Should I be on the knees? Should I be standing, facing a certain direction? What do I do with my arms? Should I hold them out like a cross, or should I bring them in in a prayerful position in front of the heart? Should I stand on one foot and put the other foot behind me, or should I stand on the other foot and put that one behind me?”

And I have said to them, “It matters not. In truth, what matters is where the heart is.”

In this time when you are growing the most wondrous consciousness, allowing the consciousness to expand to take in truth and love, this is your springtime, and it will expand and extend as long as you want it to; in other words, ones have said, “Well, Jeshua, I have lived almost ninety years, and how can you speak to me of springtime? I’m no spring chicken.” But in the heart—the heart is love—you are always young. You are always at the place of entertaining spring.

You look for spring in the outer, and you rejoice when spring comes. The little plants, right now in your timing, are coming up through the soil with promise, promise of beauty, the promise of new life coming forth to please you. You are creating them. You are asking for them to come; otherwise, they would not be in your reality. So they are coming up to please you.

The tiny little shoots are coming up, and they have such promise in them; the same with the springtime of your ideas. They have much to share with you. They come and knock upon the door of your mind and say, “Open to me. I will open to you. I will share my perfume of the new ideas with you.” Then you abide in the place of spring, and that can be forever.

Allow yourself to know spring. If you choose to be weighed down by the world, it is a choice. Many of the brothers and sisters that I see in this day and time are weighed down. They even walk a certain way, and you can see that they carry a burden on their shoulders, on their back. Speak to them of the deep breath. Speak to them of the newness of spring. And when they look at you like you are crazy, you say, “Yes, I am. I have drunk of the elixir of spring, and it is good.”

You are new every day, every moment. This is the springtime that you carry with you every day, every moment. Rejoice.

In Jeshua’s lifetime His name was Yeshu’a. “Jesus” is the Greek form of His name. “Jeshua” is the Anglicized version. (But He says that it doesn’t matter what name you call Him, as long as you call Him...)

A Note from Barry Peterson, Narrator of Jeshua's 7 Volumes

Just a little note for those audiophiles that enjoy listening to music and audio books on their phones and devices.

Jeshua, The Personal Christ Volumes 1-7, will be available on iTunes in 2-3 weeks (by the end of March) for those who wish to carry Jeshua wherever they go in their daily journeys. All the audios of the seven volumes narrated by me are available free of charge on my streaming website <http://jeshuathepersonalchrist.org/> but we know there are those who prefer a downloadable option, and it also gives us the opportunity to reach a new generation of listeners and bring the beauty and wisdom of Jeshua to those who are more comfortable with this medium. It is also an excellent way to support the work of Oakbridge, as part of the downloadable fee goes to Oakbridge.

As one of the audio books site says, Listening is the New Reading. I personally hope not, but it is an excellent way to utilize your free time when books are not convenient. To find sanity in an insane world, to find light in the darkness, to find Love where it has always been but we have been too blind to see, there can be no greater gift. Thank you, Brother; Thank you, Friend; Thank you, Jeshua.

Note from Judith: Thank you, Barry, for making all this possible!

JESHUA Q&A

Trump

I think our President needs a lot of our love. What is happening with him? He seems like one crisis after another. Is he going to be involved in all of these changes that are happening too?

Very much so. Yes, he is one who always stirs the pot, as it would be, where other ones either agree or disagree; other ones rise up to make decisions on their own part. He is a very good one for getting ones to have to stop and think where they stand, how they feel about things. He does not hold back, as you have seen. He walks right into the middle of whatever energy is going on, and he stirs it up a bit. This is his job. He has come along at this most appropriate time to have ones ascertain within themselves how they see things, what they want to see in what you term the future. So he is doing his job very well. He is doing it right out there in front of everyone, and he is taking the slings and arrows. He is not happy with the slings and arrows, but he is standing out there, and he is saying, "Crucify me," so there are ones who say, "Okay."

Okay. It's really tough some days when it seems like he's really on the extreme.

Yes, but he just does that to bring out your own understanding of how it feels to be in the place where he thinks he is. You see, he is truly living in the outer, the small child that has never felt loved. He is calling out for love, and he will call out in any way that he tries, because he wants to be loved, and yet there is no amount of love that will satisfy him.

Exactly, no matter much people grovel before him.

Right. He has already tested that in other lifetimes where he has been the king. And he is one of the famous ones, perhaps not the most famous, to order "off with their heads" if they didn't agree with him. He is very much into power, worldly power, because he wants to know the inner power. But it remains to be seen if that will happen in this lifetime or another. As it is seen now, it will probably be in another lifetime before he stops long enough to feel that there are ones who truly love him and truly want to see him succeed. But he has put the armor around himself.

"ILLEGAL ALIENS"

All the families that are being divided, and children separated from their parents; it's ridiculous.

Yes, it is. So you do what you can do. When ones come to your doorstep, or if you meet them in the shopping mall, and you have a way to help them, you do that. If not, do not tie yourself up in a knot because you feel so strongly. I know that you do. I understand that, because I have been there. But you do what you can do, and then you see clearly their power, because no one is without power. No one is out there being the victim, being weak, because each one has choice. And it is bringing out for some of the ones their strength that they didn't know that they had or didn't want to see that they had, but is being forced upon them.

It is not for all time. It is going to be changing. These changes that I spoke about are very much in flux right now. They seem to be really, really big. They seem to be really, really hurtful. But there are healers such as you who are putting love out there every time you think of ones who are seemingly in the victim mode. You are putting out your love, you are putting out the truth of their being, the other ones who are going through the experience, and knowing that this is all for good.

It doesn't look like it, but it is for good. It brings for you and many of the ones who are in the middle of the road a chance to see the strength of the ones who think they don't have strength, and yet to look upon the ones who are rising up and saying, "Enough already," and the ones who are out there carrying their signs, out there marching, signing the petitions, and saying, "This is not who we are; we're better than this." And that is the part that is going to rise up and take over. So it's a period of change; not easy.

DIFFERING FAMILY BELIEFS

Beloved angel lady, how are you in this evening?

Not so level. So I've been witnessing how we humans have the capacity to believe the most ridiculous stuff (This is true) And totally believe it (Oh, yes) So I'm going to take this conversation you were having and make it more personal. As the holy season approaches and we gather with family,

I'll be gathering with my family, and as I'm thinking ahead of that time, there are those in my family who have very different political and spiritual and religious beliefs than I do. I'm at a point with what's happening out in the world where it's become more difficult for me to silently abide the difference between our beliefs.

But I also know it's my mommy and my daddy and my brother, and I want to overlook our differences, find a way to be accepting of that and still be able to find the love in my heart for them. Sometimes my mind gets busy and makes that difficult.

Well, know, first of all, that the love that you have for them and they for you will always be (Always) The rest of this is surface stuff. It is a static on the line, as it were. You want to tune it so that there is more love and less static, and you will do that by making your comments positive, but also speaking your truth. Say, "You know, I've found a different way to look at this." If they want to hear it...they might be open to it; you don't have to force it down their throat because they're not wanting it, but speak your truth in a loving way, but speak your truth and say, "But there is another way to look at this, etc." You can follow it up with standing in your belief. You don't have to say, "Well, I'm afraid they won't love me any longer," because that's the bottom line message. When you step back and you don't say how you are feeling, you are then in a place of fear, where you're saying, "Well, if I truly say what I am feeling, then somehow they won't like me as much." It is okay to speak your truth; not because you are going to change them, but because you want to stand up for the self of you.

I've been silent for many years. I'm just tolerating the painful difference between us, and I feel like the times that I have spoken up, there's no hearing, there's no space to hear. I'm to the point where I want to believe that I really don't care anymore (But you do) but I do, and because I know it's so important for them that we have this loving connection.

So, once more into the fray you go (Laughter) but you're going to have your battle armor around you; not to do battle, but to allow the seemingly tender person—now, you are tender, but you are not at another one's mercy—to have her say. And it is okay if no one hears you. But what is not okay is to stay silent because of fear. So speak your truth. It may fall on rocky ground and nothing happens, or it may just find a wee bit of the soil; who knows? In time it is going to fall on soil, because that is what has already been pre-determined and agreed, that ones will come back to knowing heaven on Earth. And when I say "coming back", it is because truly when we first came to holy Mother Earth, we came in peace, we came in total understanding of the power of us—we, as One. And then there was the gradual acceptance that, okay, we'll play another scene. But now the children have become tired of the other scene.

This child has become very tired of the other scene.

Right, and there are many more like you. So there is an opening, and there is a rising up, where ones are not belligerent because that is not what you want to be; it just does not feel good; but in loving-kindness you speak your truth. And then the person of you, the being of you says, “Okay, I put it out there. They are putting out what they believe; I can put out what I believe.” And love them nonetheless (Thank you) Thank you for asking, because in this time right now, ones have been asking me, “Why is there so much going on right now, so much drama going on?” It is because you have asked that you come through it. You’re bringing it to...it is very much like when you have something that has to be burst on the skin in order for it to heal. That is what you are doing now. You are bringing it, in the collective consciousness, to the place where it has to be burst and let go, opened. (I love you) And I you (Thank you) I see your Light. I know the angel that you are. And know, as you do know, that I walk with you all the time (Always; I feel you with me always) Yes, it is my joy; it is my joy. (Thank you)

FRACKING

This morning I was brought into the awareness that there was a 5.6 earthquake in northern Oklahoma, and I am curious, because I have ill will towards the process of fracking, if it was fracking related, and did the right people get the message when they were shaken up this morning, that they’re causing this for themselves?

Yes and no. Yes, fracking does have impact upon the surface of the Earth. Did they get the message? No, not yet. It has to come right literally to their doorstep. Some ones are a little bit hard of—I will not say hard of hearing, but they’re hard of seeing until it is brought right to their doorstep, maybe a few cracks in their own walls to understand that, “Hey, what I am doing here might have impact,” which it does.

So there may be a few more of the jolts that happen. We will wait and see (Okay, thank you) Thank you for asking that. There are many who will be wondering. This is a topic that ones are wondering about. Is this a natural thing to do, this fracking? Is it natural to disturb the crust of holy Mother Earth? First of all, is it needed (No) They think so (A wakeup call) It is a wakeup call.

It is for ones to understand that there is not the separation. You, and the energy that you are, share energy with holy Mother Earth. There is no separation between your energy, your frequency and hers. If more ones would understand that you have been at the birthing of holy Mother Earth...you have been at the birthing of bringing forth this planet and all the other planets that are in orbit around your sun.

You have been there in the very beginning. We brought it forth as our creation. Now, we have spoken and you are understanding how you create your own reality—lower case “r”. Holy Mother Earth is within your reality—lower case “r”. You are creating holy Mother Earth with every thought. There is no separation.

So that which seems to be very firm—you walk on terra firma—is truly energy, and it is only your belief that keeps you from sinking through, because you believe that it is solid. In truth, this whole building around you, this dwelling place, is energy. Can you walk through walls? Of course you can, when there is the belief, the knowing that you are energy and it is energy, and you are creating it moment by moment.

It blows the mind; that is the purpose of all of these exercises, is to blow the mind to the place where you come to the heart and you say, “I love. I Am love. I Am Light. I play and dance upon the firmament—full stop, period, that’s it. And not to take any guilt, because what does guilt do? It lowers the vibration.

You are doing it because you can. And when you decide that you don’t want to do it any longer, you will stop creating fracking and all the rest of it. You see, you are much more powerful than you have ever been taught; much more powerful than ever you have thought you could be. Play well. Play well with each other, and I will play with you.

WHO IS YOUR SOULMATE?

In Genesis 1 it says “male and female created he them”. Did it originally say “as one”, and those words got dropped, or was that true?

It came from the One, and then there was thought to create somewhat different form to have fun together, and that is where the male and female came in the creative process. It came from One. You have discerned well that truly this is why ones are sometimes looking for their soulmate, their other half, and they feel that something is missing until they find that other one. Truly, everyone you meet is your soulmate, because there is only One, so you have discerned very well, yes.
