

From the One Mind to the Specific Focus of Individuality

01/01/19 Center for Living

(Opening statements)

This evening is a most wonderful evening for you have invited me to be with you in a grand reunion once again. A reunion from ancient times. A reunion of heart and soul. For I will say to all of you in this room that we have been together in other lifetimes as well. We have been together in service to the Father and you have come this evening because there has been a knowing deep within your heart. A knowing that you are called once again to be together as family and to be together as servants of the Father.

Not servants as the world would define servant, who would say that servant is lowly, that servant has no will of its own, but the servant of the Father knows that which will it serves. It is the will of the All, the source of your being. It is the presence of love. That you have agreed that you will serve. And this evening you have answered an invitation to be here to remember, to come together in a consciousness that claims who you truly are. To come together in joy. To come together in remembrance, to come together in a consciousness of love and healing for it is time.

I would speak to you this evening a few words and then we will have time for, as we did in olden times, what is called olden times, and yet those times they are not far away for you can remember deep within your self, those times that we shared around a fire. When you asked of me, "Master, what is the Truth of life? What is the Truth of Being? Why are we here? Why is there so much of duality, conflict? Master, what is the Truth?"

This evening you have come to claim the knowing that you claimed on those olden days. So later in this evening we will have time as we did in those times, to have questions back and forth. Dialogue where if you have a question that you have been wrestling with, you may throw it out and we will wrestle with it in joy.

But first I would speak with you about where you are a collective consciousness, humankind. Where you are even in this geo-political grouping called your country. You stand now at a most wonderful time in this evolution of consciousness. You stand now at a place where in truth you have been many other times as the cycle of evolution has gone around and around. To stand now at a time, a threshold if you will, of awakening. A time of great import and yet most wonderful miracle that you do day by day you live each day, each moment caught up in the details of what needs to be done and I do not nay say that for indeed there is much that needs to be done in human life. And yet as you go about the daily activities there is much of the evolution of consciousness that is happening.

You have come to what you have decreed to be a turning of an age. You have moved into what you call a new millennium and there has been much of expectation heralding this time. You would remember a year of twelve months or so ago in you timing when there was much of expectation. "What will the new millennium bring? What will it be like?" Much of celebration. Much of doom and gloom, of prophecies beforehand. That you'd better prepare, you'd better put away the foodstuffs for who would know perhaps you power would be interrupted. And those of you of awakening heart, you knew even as you listened to the prophecies, you knew that your power can never be taken from you. In truth, can never be interrupted for your power comes from within. It comes from who you are, the divinity.

But twelve months and so again in your timing there was great anticipation. "What will the new millennium look like? What will it bring? Surely this will be a time of new consciousness." And those who were foretelling the doom and gloom they agreed that it would be a time of new consciousness but they saw it a bit differently.

And you, you have moved into it with optimism. You have said, "I expect the miracles. I expect the time of golden age." And where does that expectation come from? It came from a knowing deep within you that you have been alive. You have been the herald, the ones who heralded a golden age. Many of them other times around and you have drawn upon what you have known to be deep within your heart, and you have said, "This will be a time of light."

{Looking at a painting of Jesus.}

A very good likeness. Yes. Thank you.

You have said that this would be a time of light that you will be individually and collectively allowing more and more light into your own understanding. That you will bring more and more light to bear upon every issue. You have asked for the light. You have chosen. Always there is a choice when you look at an issue as to how you will see it.

Whether you will see it in light or you will see it in darkness. And you have said, "I am moving into a new time, a new consciousness of light therefore I will choose consciously to see things in a new light." And that is where you stand now upon the threshold of a new age. A time of light.

In the immediate year you are going to see changes because you have decreed that you want to awaken. You individually and collectively, so there will be a time this year especially, a time of assessment, a time of looking at what has been in the past. Taking stock of where you have been both physically, but more than that, mentally, emotionally, spiritually in your understanding. And where you want to go. Becoming clearer about what you want in your life. This will be a year of assessment.

Not heavy assessment but you will find yourself in your quiet times, you will find yourself when you are doing your daily activities that require not too much of the mind, you will find the mind contemplating what has been important about this life? What is important in the future as I see time to be linear? What is important now that I want to experience and express?"

You will be finding that individually and also as collective consciousness. You stand upon the threshold even in this evening of the beginning and inauguration you call of a new leader of your geo-political groupings, your country. And it is a time that will bring great enlightenment.

For old issues are going to come up to be looked at. Already these issues have been coming up in the past year of your timing more and more of issues of love or non-love have been coming into the awareness on the individual level and also in the group, the groupings. And this is important. It is because you have decreed that you want to have everything that has not heretofore been seen in holiness to be looked at, reviewed, re-looked at, reviewed, so that you can see everything in holiness and see the divine purpose.

Now at first, quite often with human perception the divine purpose does not seem obvious and many times you have seen in your individual life there have been circumstances, challenges that you have been in the midst of and you have wondered, "Why is this happening? What did I do wrong to bring this upon myself?" You have heard that voice within you. "What did I do? I didn't mean to do it. If I knew what it was I'd go back and change it." And in truth you have done nothing wrong.

You have chosen from the soul level to have an experience in order to see the holiness of it. Hear that well. You have never done anything wrong. Not in this lifetime.

Not in other lifetimes. Not even in all of the lifetimes that you were beginning to understand that you have lived and perhaps were the most barbaric warrior who seemingly "caused" other's demise in most horrendous fashion. Yes, you have lived those lifetimes. You have been the kings, the queens. You have been the warriors. The ones who said, "Off with the head," of your brothers and sisters and thought no more about it. You went to sleep that night with nary a care in the world. You have been there. Was that wrong? In truth, no.

It has been by divine design for the experience of it, for the enlightenment of it, for the adventure of it. Does your Father judge you and say that it was wrong? No. Your Father watches, lives through you, experiences, but does not judge.

Where you stand now it is a most exciting time. It is a place where you have stood other times, other new ages that you have ushered in. You are the light workers, yes and that does not mean to the exclusion of any others who are not in this room. But you are light workers. You are ones who have said, "The light is important to me." And by light I mean much more than just the physical light. "The enlightenment, the remembrance is important to me. My divinity, that is what is important to me."

You have come through many lifetimes where you did not even consider what was important. You must have come through those lifetimes existing, experiencing and expressing whatever was the portion of light as you understood it to be. But there came a time in your awareness, lifetimes ago and reviewed in this lifetime, there came a time when you said, "I will arise up and return unto my Father."

In other words, you looked around and you said, "There must be more to life than just existence. There must be more to life than just what I see by appearances. What is life? Who am I? Why am I here?" And with that most revelatory thought, question, you began the ascent to return unto the Father.

Again it has been reviewed in this lifetime for you have reached that point where you said, "You know, I've got some years behind me. I've accomplished some goals. I've done some of the things that society said were important to do in a lifetime. But there is something missing. There must be more." And you began to search with the books, the tapes, the teachers, the group, the friends, and you asked the friends, sometimes with the words, sometimes just by watching them, you asked of them, "What have you found to be inspiring in your life? What have you found to be healing? What have you found to be meaningful?" And you either asked them that in words and they said, "It is this book. It is this teacher. It is this class, or it is a certain experience in my lifetime that was life-changing." Or you watched them and you saw that challenges they had yes, sometimes more challenges than you had endured and they were happy, optimistic and you knew they knew something that you wanted to know and so you watched them and you began to go where they went.

And now what you do it is watched by the brothers and sisters, the other ones who are also awakening to that place of wondering, "Why, why life? Why a lifetime? What is important? I see joy when the newborn comes upon this planet and is received into a family. I see that newborn a life full of potential. It is a time of celebration. And I see that little one as he/she grows in stature and in wisdom. And I celebrate with that one as they come over the certain hurdles of stages in a lifetime."

And you see them start their own families and you take stock of your life and you say, "Well here I am with certain years and experience and I'm looking at perhaps a transition time. And I don't know if I'm finished. Have I completed what I came for? What did I come for?" And you begin to turn questions like that over in your mind. It is the beginning of remembrance. It is a place where you connect with, "I know that I am eternal. I know that this cannot be all there is of me. It doesn't make sense that this would be all of me. Look at what I've done in this lifetime, how hard I've worked to make me what I am. It doesn't make sense that at a certain point all of that would go poof and be no more." And you begin to connect with an inner knowing that says, "I don't understand it all but I am connected to the I AM that I have always been. I don't even know what that means but I know that there is a part of me that is from before time and that part is going to always be." And that is true.

As this beautiful one has sung to you in the vibrational tones of music, "Why have you come? Why have you taken birth?" It is to love. It is to serve and it is to remember. For in the loving that leads you to serve and in the serving you remember that the one I serve is me. For there is no separation.

You have the saying, "Am I my brother's keeper?" No, I am my brother, my sister. There is no separation. And as you serve that one and serving can only be merely, but it is no small thing, acknowledging that one. Looking eye to eye with that one and saying, "I acknowledge you. I value you." And the most wonderful thing happens, you begin to feel yourself meld into that one, truly deeply into the heart of that one. Most wonderful love that goes beyond any bound, the love of yourself.

This evening you are standing at a place, the beginning of what you call a new year. The place of a new consciousness birthing because you have decreed that you want it. You have decreed that it is time. You stand upon the threshold of the new millennium and it will be as you make it. Remember that, it will be as you make it. For you, you will see light. You will see divine purpose. You will see with holy vision. Someone standing next to you may not see it that way but that is okay. This is a time of completion. It is a time when anything that has not been seen in holiness will come up to be looked at, reviewed once again.

And many of your brothers and sisters are doing completion with issues that they have not yet seen in holiness. Issues that they yet wrestle with. And you know that feeling. You have been there. You have wrestled and there may be some who continue in their wrestling even though you can see divine purpose. Even though you will serve them with your optimism, with your hope, with your love.

They will say as they said to me in that lifetime that is so famous, "Not yet." For there were many who came unto me and cried, "Master, master." And when I would share with them the truth of their being they turned away sorrowful. They did not understand what I would share with them. They said, "Not yet." "I have not drunk deeply of the cup," they said, "to the completion of it." And so I said, "So be it. You can leave the cup half full, half empty. It doesn't matter to me or to the Father."

But they said, "No...?...never to be found again." Experiences yes, you will have those but count them all as good For indeed they are. Just stop and you take a deep breath and with that deep breath comes inspiration. It is the simplest and it is the most healing. It is the most miraculous. The first thing that you do as you take incarnation as an individual and all of the days in between, breathe deeply, breathe deeply of the spirit. It nourishes the physical body and it nourishes the soul. And allow yourself then to give thanks for each and every challenge, each and every brick wall for it brings you to that place closer and closer of claiming, "I want to know my divinity. I want to connect to once again with who I am. I want to remember union."

Know you how loved you are? Know you how wonderful, how beautiful you are? Know you the love of the Father? Most wonderful. Know you that every time you shed a tear it releases lifetimes when you did not feel safe enough to even acknowledge the emotion of the heart. Every time you allow the wellspring of water to flow freely you release burdens of lifetimes. You allow all of that to be released so that there can be the in flowing of spirit, the healing spirit of love. So beautiful. Physical beauty, yes, but inner beauty. Most wonderful.

There is one here I would speak with. How goes it brother?

Well spoken. Enjoy you life?

[Yes, I am.

Is it as good as you would like it to be?

[It sure is.

Great. Well spoken. And if you would have more, do not hold back. Go for it for it is all yours. Smile. Most wonderful smile. Most wonderful.

This evening it has occurred to me also, this evening some of you have come wanting a healing. In truth all of you have come this evening wanting a healing. Different kinds, and there will be in this evening the healings. Enough said.
