

The Pearl of Great Price

2003

Beloved one, this is a time of awakening. We have spoken of that some decades now — truly we have spoken of that many centuries — it is a time now of awakening, and the catalysts for the awakening are coming in intensity, and they are also coming subtly.

Many of you have felt a stirring even before the incarnation to be here at this time: to be the seekers, to be the finders, to be the ones who will hold the vision of something beyond the small view of what is right in front of the nose, to be able to hold the larger vision for ones who are caught momentarily in the appearances.

Knowing of peace

Allow your knowing of peace to spread across the face of our Holy Mother, the Earth. That is what the awakening is about: coming to that place of knowing the Kingdom of the Father, not the temporal kingdoms which have arisen and have fallen, and will continue yet for a while to arise, to be defended, to be attacked, to fall. You see that happening even in this day and time: Should a certain group invade another geopolitical grouping to try to change a kingdom? It is the same as it has been for eons of time.

You are the ones who are changing that view. You are not a minority. You are a majority which has been somewhat silent and now is beginning to find a voice. You speak amongst yourselves and that voicing spreads as the ripples upon the pond, touching others who are of like mind, others who have seen, experienced — in this lifetime and other lifetimes as well — to know that truly the separation of “us” and “them” brings only more divisiveness and fear and separation from the Source, our Father. Seek ye that which is true within your heart. Seek the Kingdom of peace, the Kingdom of the Father, that place which is unassailable by any of the threats of the world.

In the world you will have war and rumors of war, but in my Father’s house, the Kingdom, you will know peace and harmony and Love, from before time began. The Love which truly you are will endure beyond time. Seek ye the Kingdom of peace, for it is the pearl of great price, that, once having found it, it is priceless. The world does not know it and cannot put a price upon it, for the world does not know that peace and does not value it.

The pearl

But once having found that pearl, the Kingdom of peace, it is priceless. And once having found it — or I will say, remembered it — it is for you to treasure, to hold and to set it forth upon the waters of spirit for all of those who are receptive and desirous of knowing the Kingdom.

You are, in truth, the peacemakers. You are, in truth, the ones who are a majority. Every one of the brothers and sisters is looking for love, to be accepted, to be valued.

Choose to be spontaneous in the moment; choose to come from the place of the heart and to speak in that moment as if it could be your last moment and you speak from a new paradigm, a new place – not the old pattern, but a new pattern – and you are spontaneous about it. Allow yourself to live in the space where you give up the value which has been put upon – perhaps a subtle value, sometimes not so subtle – drama, conflict and the feeling of energy that goes with conflict and drama. Abide in the space where you give up the vested interest in worrying. You live in the now and you do not worry. It is a new pattern, and you live in the Kingdom for a moment at least. You allow yourself not to be given to judgment of self or of others. You allow yourself not to be given over to interpreting what they meant by what they said or did.

Live in the now

You do not judge yourself for having not said or done the right thing. You do not for a moment or so judge another for what they said or did not say or what they chose to do or did not do. You give over even interpreting what you think they meant when they said or what they did. And you live in the now as it would be your last moment. All that is past, is past, and it is. And you come from the place of great freedom of the Now.

You do not have to carry the burden of the past into the now. For the burdens of the past are not known in the Kingdom. And as you will abide in the Kingdom, in the place of peace, non-judgment, not interpreting, not even worrying about what is going to be asked of you in the next moment, but just being the Light which you are, then you know the pearl of great price which is priceless. And once you have felt that freedom, no longer do you go heavy burdened by the world.

Now you go with an appreciation of, "How great it is to be me" – not from the small ego, but from the place of the I AM ego. "How great it is to be ME! To be the Christ." And as you claim that, and you know that for yourself, it changes everything.

You go in gratitude for the awakening which happens within you in that moment of the realization of the Kingdom, the realization of freedom. And what happens then is the greatest miracle of all: the smile spreads across the face and the heart opens and the healing which the collective soul has been desiring for eons of time is allowed to expand and to be known. There is a great collective smile, a great collective sigh.

For know you that collectively the brothers and sisters in this time are holding their breath? You have felt it yourself. You have been waiting for something to happen. You have been expecting, and your news media love to play upon expectations and they will give you their interpretation.

But if you stand back and give no value to interpreting, you find great peace. You can watch the drama unfold, but you do not have vested interest in it – in other words, you do not have to make anything happen, but you come from the place of allowing, letting the awakening happen.

Now, this does not mean ignoring guidance if there is guidance to do something, to say something. Allow yourself to go each day as if it could be the last opportunity to love, appreciate someone, to speak that which is given to you to speak.

Allow the love of the others to be accepted by you. You are very quick to give to others your love. You go out of your way to love, to comfort, to facilitate other's healing. You go out of your way to speak the word for others so that they can be enlightened. Now allow yourself to expand in the love that others give to you.

For truly, for a flow to happen, there has to be the receiving as well as the giving. And one of the things that humankind has taught itself not to do, or has armored itself very heavily against, is about accepting the love of others. Humankind has taught itself, by so-called evidence, that it is not safe to open to receive. It is a good thing to give, but to open to receive, that is another matter because that leaves you vulnerable – supposedly – and it does leave you vulnerable to accepting your divinity. So you have put – individually and collectively – the armor around self and you know how to deflect the love that others give to you.

They give you a compliment and you say, "Oh, it's nothing." Or you turn it around very quickly and give it back to them.

The next time someone gives you a compliment or a word of appreciation, be silent for a moment. Be as a sponge and soak it up. Allow that love to be truly received. Be silent for a moment and smile and allow all of the cells of the body itself to open to the love which is being given to you.

Then, when you have soaked up so much that the sponge cannot hold any more, give it to another. Go as the sponges that you are. Fill up, release. Fill up and release, for your world is tired of the armor. Your world cries out yet that armor is necessary, that the first strike is necessary in defense. And yet the truth of your being is opposite to the belief of the world. The Christ of you, the true Being of you, needs no defense. It cannot have any defense for it cannot be threatened. It is and forever will be beyond time.

So when the small self and the small ego get wrapped up in relationships, having to defend, having to be right, having to be as old patterning, allow yourself the deep breath. Allow yourself to stand in the place of the heart and to then come from that place as if that moment could be your last moment to speak the truth of your heart.

Allow the old ways to be buried, forgotten, passed into the nothingness that they are. And allow yourself opportunity to be spontaneous. Give up the value of conflict, the value of drama, the value of worry, the value of interpreting and judging. Live in the now moment and speak from the heart.

And when others speak to you, hear what they are truly saying – not just the words that they use, but what they are saying from the heart and what they have feared. For truly many will say to you words that put up armor because they think that you will not see or love the true being of them. They think that if you truly knew them as they think themselves to be, you would not love them.

So they put up armor and they play a role, and they will speak words to you of bravado. You have all put armor – little Band-Aids – over the wounds, and after a while the little Band-Aids become bigger and bigger to the place where you are pretty much covered in Band-Aids. And then when you want to be the sponge, the Band-Aids are in the way.

So what you do now is you release the Band-Aids and the bandages, and you allow the old wounds to be open to Light. You know that a physical injury/wound heals much more rapidly when it is left open rather than covered up. Sometimes in the beginning you cover it a bit, but as the healing process goes along, you allow it then to be open to the light, to the air, to the healing.

It is the same with the soul and the heart of you. In between all of the Band-Aids there is space. Allow that space to expand as the sponge and soak up the love that others are most willing to give to you because they see the goodness of you. They see what you truly want to express and to be. They see beyond that which you think yourself to be. None of you are able to hide that which you are. You think that you can, and you put on armor and you put on a persona and you act a certain way which has brought to you, in the past, certain benefit. But, in truth, you cannot hide from others that which you are.

I ask you to remember, re-acknowledge, the Kingdom of our Father, the Love itself, the innocent love. It is the pearl which is priceless, the pearl which the world does not know. But you can know it.

It is simple, yes. Easy, not so easy. But it is easy if you are willing. It begins with the deep breath. That is what changes everything. In the moment of the deep breath everything shifts, and you can begin anew, letting the old patterning go, valuing the precious moment of now as if it would be your last moment and speaking from the place of the heart.

When you do that, you are in compassion with others. When you do that, you allow the collective soul to breathe. When you do that, you claim the Awakening and the Christ walks again in realized form even in this world that yet believes that there could be other than the Christ.

Go now as the Christ which you are. Claim all of the inheritance of your Father, the pearl of great price. Live from the place of innocence. Live in compassion which truly acknowledges the Christ of all, and lets the past be gone into the nothingness that it is. You are the Now; you are the pearl.

So be it.
