

My Peace I Give Unto You

2011-05-05

Beloved and holy and only Child of our heavenly Father, Child of the one Source, Child of Light, divine. That is who you are. Take it deeply within the consciousness and contemplate what that means. Child of Light, divine.

I am the one known as Jeshua ben Joseph, Jesus you have called me, and it is in great joy that I come to abide with you this evening in your timing as you have chosen once again to call me forth. Great joy, great love, reunion, remembrance, coming together once again in the joy of the creative one Child, expression of the divine.

I am the one known to you as an elder brother, companion, friend. I walk with you, I talk with you each and every day. In my travels I have had many names, and you have known me by many names. There are times in your quiet times when you reflect upon me and our association together, and perhaps a name will come to you, and you say, "Well, that must be someone I have known. It must be a friend, and I am.

But it may not be Yeshua, as a name. It may not be Jesus, as a name. But the essence of me is always that of an elder brother, friend, companion who walks with you, cheers you on, gives you a bit of guidance if you will hear it, and you do; the one who will laugh with you about the most seeming tragic events of the world and the one who says, "Yes, that does happen, but there is more. Look further. Allow yourself to behold the holy picture—w-h-o-l-e. Allow yourself not to get caught up in appearances.

Do not deny appearances, but do not think that that is all there is. Because truly, the appearances—and you have many happening in this day and time—are but the tip of the iceberg of what is happening. They give you a clue as to what is truly happening within yourself, within your own consciousness.

You see much of upheaval, change, seemingly chaos even where there is much in your world that is happening right now for change; ones finding their voice and saying, "I will release the body, if necessary, in order to speak my truth. And many ones are doing this, as you have been called upon in other lifetimes to do this, and as you may be called upon in this lifetime not to release the body, but to speak your truth lovingly to ones and to say, "Have you considered...," and then you will put forward perhaps what seems to be an outrageous idea to them, and yet by doing that, you give them an opportunity to look at happenings in a new light, from a new perspective.

"Have you considered...," you say. "Perhaps something else is happening here. Have you considered..." And you ask them, "Why do you believe...," whatever it is that they have been saying. In other words, where are you coming from, and you listen. You don't get into conflict right away. In fact, you don't do it at all, because you love them and you understand that they are giving forth what they have known, what they have been taught, what they have believed up to that point that had to be true because others told them, who seemingly were authorities, that this is what is happening. But then you come along and you say, "Have you considered it might be...," and then you suggest there might be more that is happening here.

Your brothers and sisters now are waking up. This is what is happening. They are as the seeds that have been planted generations ago, truly lifetimes ago, and they are sprouting forth. They will not be held back any longer, the same as with a seed that you plant. It bursts the casing of the seed and it starts forth with the shoot that comes even before it is seen, underground, and then it is seen above ground.

So rejoice even though it looks tragic with all of the uprisings and the ones who are being asked to release the body in certain seeming horrific ways. Look further and rejoice that truly those seedlings that have been below ground are now popping up through the top of the soil and being seen. They are making a stand for equality, wanting their voices to be heard, wanting respect, space to live, to be, to express all that they can understand themselves to be, and then to grow from there even further, growth that they cannot even imagine at this point, but it is happening.

There has been prophecy long, long time ago that this would be happening. There was a timetable set forth, and everything is in process as was spoken. So when your news media brings you the scenes of seeming chaos, allow yourself to congratulate those souls that are courageous enough to be doing what they are doing. Know that you are One in energy with them, and you can be as cheerleader to them. Send them the love and supportive energy. Say to them, "I believe in you. I believe in what you are trying to establish now, and it is about time."

You have in your own geo-political grouping, no matter where the dwelling place may be, you have ones who are taking a stand on one side of the fence and others who are taking a stand on the other side of the fence. There is much that is being revealed. And in this reality that believes in duality—believes in two sides, good and not so good—you are going to find, at least now in the process, you are going to find opposition to any idea that comes forth. Because of generational teaching, ones are going to stand on one side or on the other side, and sometimes it can be uncomfortable if you are with them when they are putting forth what they believe to be true.

But that is when you say, “But have you considered another way of looking at this?” It doesn’t mean that you are right and they are wrong or vice versa. It just means, “Can you step back from this for a moment and consider something else, something different, perhaps?” Because truly, there is much that is going on now that is to be celebrated.

Now, I know that sounds strange to separated ego. That sounds strange when you read the news headlines and all about the conflicts that are going on. It sounds strange when you go to your workplace and you have ones who are standing toe to toe with you and saying, “But can’t you see that I’m right?” They are putting forth whatever idea they believe in, and maybe you don’t see it the same as they do.

But there is much cause for celebration now, because ones are waking up. Ones are finding that they are not alone in putting forth their ideas. They have found their voice and they have found brothers and sisters who also are finding their voice and having the courage to speak from the place of the heart, the place of divine wonderment.

Sometimes they do wonder, “Why am I out in the street doing what I am doing? Why me?” There are many who have questioned themselves even as they have been in the street protesting what has been the norm for a long time, who have asked of themselves, “What am I doing here? I used to be quite a peaceful person and I never questioned what was going on. I was too afraid to open my mouth and say anything. But look, I’ve found others who are now finding their voice, and I’m lending my voice to it.

Whatever the cost, it is to be celebrated. Truly, the cost is not as great as human perspective makes it out to be. In other words, the ones who are courageous enough to release the body already have a soul plan to return and live in the space that they believe in. They are making way for something new, and they will return and live in that new space. So even while it looks to be tragic, horrific, there is much to be celebrated.

It was the same two thousand years ago in some aspects and even worse. We have spoken the last couple of times that we have met this way of how there is an evolution happening in consciousness, where you have descended into the darkest and most dense place that you could imagine, that you could create; the most barbaric and the most separated, where you felt that you could do to others anything with impunity, that it would not come back to you, especially when you were in power.

But now you have been ascending into the place of knowing that what happens to a brother affects you, as well. There is truly only one creative Principal, Child, expression of the divine, and you are coming to an awakening—you individually and collectively—to a place where you are understanding that what happens half-way around our holy Mother, the Earth, has impact upon you.

Conversely, what you believe and how you in your consciousness view what is happening has impact upon the brothers and sisters at a very deep level that may not be a mental conscious level, but it has impact upon them, as well.

So do not think that, “Well, that’s happening far away from here, and I’m not going to listen to the news, because it is much too sad, much too tragic.” That is where I say unto you, look, know what is going on, look at appearances; don’t get caught up in appearances, but do not deny appearances.

It is the same message that I taught you when you were my disciples when you asked about healing. “Master, how do we heal?” Because I gave forth the command—or suggestion is a better word for it—that you go and heal, and you said, “But how? Master, how? Rabbi, how do we heal?”

I said, first of all, you do not deny appearances. If one comes to you and has the appearance of the diseasement of perhaps the skin, you do not deny that they have what is now called leprosy, but you look past that to the divine Self of them, to the divine creative energy that is creating even what looks to be a dis-ease. You hold that vision with great knowing, great energy. You offer it, and if they are in a place of soul acceptance—because there is much that does go on at the soul level, and there may be a soul plan that does not include healing at that moment—but if they are at a place at soul level for accepting it, the healing will be instantaneous; it will happen.

Or, if the soul has said that there will be a process, then there will be a process of healing. It is not for you to judge. It is not for you to say that it has to happen in a certain way and in a certain timing. But oftentimes when ones will come to you for healing, they are ready; there has been invitation that you at a very deep soul level have sent out and they have heard and they have responded and they are ready.

So this is what I taught you about healing two thousand years ago when you walked with me. I said do not deny appearances. Look and see what's going on, but then look past that to the divine process that is happening.

So when your news media brings you news that is seemingly of chaotic nature, horrific nature, do not deny that there is conflict going on, but look past it, even to the place where you can ask, "What is the motivation that is going on here? What is it rooted in? Is it rooted in just this lifetime?" And you find that truly what is happening now has its roots in other lifetimes, past lifetimes where each person was involved in whatever is going on.

Allow yourself to know that truly healing is in process, the same as what you see as a body can be calling out for healing, a body of brothers and sisters, a grouping can be calling out for healing. Oftentimes there will be—because you have a belief in time—there will be a process about it.

Now, when you look at the time process against the backdrop of all eternity, the healing of the conflicts happens as fast as that, like the snap of a finger. But when you are in the middle of it and it is going for several weeks, months, years, it can seem like a long time. Allow yourself not to get caught up in the appearances, but to look beyond and to ask, "What is truly going on here? Why does a leader want to stay in power for a long, long time? What is he/she afraid of?"

The root of separation and the belief in separation is accompanied by fear. "If I give up my belief in my power and the power of separation, what will happen to me?" And so you send your love, your healing love even to ones who stand on the brink of needing to make change. Your heart goes out to them, because with compassion you know how it would feel to be in their sandals.

You send the message of love, of peace, of belief in the process of holiness to them so that perhaps they can make a change gently, or not. But in any case, you celebrate that there is change happening.

You have many in this geo-political grouping who are stirring the pot. They enjoy drama. There is an addiction. All of you have it to some degree, an addiction to drama. It gets the adrenaline going within the body, and you have over the generations of time become addicted to having that rush of energy which proves in a backdoor way that you are alive. You often will do this. You will make evidence for yourself through the back door that you are creative.

You are very creative, and you do not have to create challenges for yourself, but oftentimes you will do this because of habit, because you have known that process and you know it well. And you are to some degree addicted to drama. It's fun to play with drama. It's fun to wonder, "What is going to happen? Oh, my goodness, if I choose 'A', then what's going to happen to 'B', 'C', 'D' all the way to omega? What is going to happen?"

You play with options. You love to play with options. The more options, the better, to the place where separated ego says, "Ah, I could do this, but on the other hand, maybe I can do that. I'd better have a lot of options, because I have taught myself over the lifetimes that if one option doesn't work, then I'd better have one in the back pocket that does work." And so you play with options and you play with drama, because it is fun, even the scary part of it.

Why do you have what are called your amusement parks that always have a house of horrors you can go into and you can be scared out of your wits? Well, it gets all of the energy going within the body, and you know that you are alive because the heart is really pounding. That is an example. You do this every day to some extent; not that extreme, but you play with options and what ifs.

And then the soul of you comes and says, "How about a deep breath? How about a little bit of peace?" At that point you take the deep breath, and a peace that the world does not know descends or arises up within you.

Two thousand years ago I said to you and I have been saying it ever since, and sometimes you have heard it, "My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you, because the world gives it and then takes it back. But my peace I give unto you. It is always there for you."

Any time you see something that is going on that does not feel peaceful, any time when the solar plexus of the body gets tied up into a knot or whatever, allow the deep breath and allow my peace, which is truly yours, to come in conscious awareness.

I see you rushing around every day, and you say, "I am running out of time." Well, that is to be celebrated. You are running out of time, out of the belief that everything has to be done in a certain timeframe. You have all of time. You are the maker of time. So you take a deep breath and you say, "I know that I am going to get to wherever I need to be in the right time. I know that I am going to get everything done in this day that needs to be done. And if I don't get it done, then I can do it tomorrow, or perhaps it doesn't have to be done."

And oftentimes, that is what you will find, that if you didn't get it done in one day, the next day you go back and you think, "Well, now I have to pick up the threads and do whatever is left over," and you find, "Well, no, it's already been sorted out." And then you can go on with that day's work.

I see you running around, driving your vehicles as speedily as you can, hoping that you will not be accosted and told by warning, perhaps, or by ticket that you have been going a wee bit over the limit that has been arbitrarily set as a safe limit. You try to get somewhere ahead of time. Well, you cannot, in truth, get there ahead of time, because you are making time. You are the maker of time, so therefore, from this moment on, which is still in time, allow yourself to know that truly you are always in the right place at the right time, and whatever else separated ego has said to you is just that. It is just that. It is a message from separated ego that wants you to feel and continue to feel separated from your power, from your Source.

Allow yourself to know the peace that is truly you. Allow yourself to feel my peace as I give it to you. Always it is there for you. Every moment, my peace I give unto you. Accept it, please. It is a free gift; no strings attached, no payment needed. Just accept it.

The same with my joy I give unto you; again, not as the world giveth. I give you my joy because life is worth living. Life is a joy. From time to time I see you discovering joy in a day and, "Hey, that feels really good. Life is worth living. I just ran into a friend that I haven't seen for a long time and it felt so joyful to speak with him/her. I just realized that I have a few extra coins that I didn't know I had, and that feels really joyful, because I have options now. What will I do with those golden coins? I feel joyful for no reason at all." Wow, that's a good one.

You stay in that space for awhile, and then as the world speaks to you, sometimes you fall out of it, but it is always there for you. My joy I give unto you, because I know that which you are. You are joy, walking, living, loving joy.

Life does not have to be a struggle. You have made evidence for yourself down through the eons of time that life has to be a struggle. You have bought and paid dearly for the belief that the more you suffer in this lifetime, the greater your reward in heaven will be. Well, I tell you, that is not true. Your reward in heaven is going to be joy, love, Light; it's going to be there, no matter how you struggle in this lifetime. You don't have to buy it. That joy, that Light, that love is yours for accepting it.

When you release the body and you seemingly go somewhere else, in truth you go nowhere else except in consciousness, and you go to your own Light, and you go to love. If you have made this lifetime a real challenge, okay, you did it for the fun of it. Maybe it didn't feel like fun, but you did it for the creativity of it. But there's no payment needed; in other words, you do not have to suffer in this lifetime in order to reap your reward in heaven. Already your reward is there, and you go to it.

I guarantee to you that when you release the body you will go to a Light. It is your own Light, and in that Light all things are seen differently. So live your life accordingly. Live it according to Light, happiness, joy, peaceful. Why not? It's a free choice.

Now, I know you have been taught by the parents, by the peers, by the "authorities", the ones who knew more than you knew—well, in truth, they don't know more than you; all are equal. As you sit in that quiet space and you access the divinity of you, all are equal, and no one knows more or less than you.

No one knows your journey. No one walks in your sandals. No one knows what your past has been except for you. No one knows your future except for you, because you are making it moment by moment by moment. You are making your future in the Now. In truth, there is no future, because when you get to what is called the future, it will be the Now. So you put into the Now that which feels joyful, feels peaceful, feels loving.

You talk with friends who can really hear you, and you find that there are more and more ones coming to you who can really hear you. Some years ago you felt that you were a lone voice crying in the wilderness, and then a friend came along and they said, "Yes, I've had ideas like that, too. I'm not quite sure what it all means, but I've had questions, and I've had some answers that came to me out of nowhere and I don't know what those answers mean, but..." and then another person/friend comes along and they say, "Yes, I've had that feeling, too."

And now you find that there are quite a few lights that are turning on, some in different voices, some in different languages perhaps, but they are coming to light, allowing their Light to shine, allowing the questions, the very deep questions to bubble up to the surface and to be looked at. And they are discussing with friends these ideas. You are being accepted for who and what you are, and your ideas are being looked at by friends who say, "Yes, you know, I've wondered about that, too." And you find that you are not alone.

That is where we were two thousand years ago when the multitudes came to hear what I had to say, because I was answering questions that you had at that time, that you wondered about. Now you are wondering, "Well, if I sat and I listened to you two thousand years ago, why am I back now with the same questions, wondering how is it going to play out this time?"

That is the answer. You are wondering, "How is it going to play out this time?" You have been finding friends, you have been finding groupings again in this lifetime, the same as you did two thousand years ago. And yes, you played along with what is called the evolutionary history of mankind that went through what is called the Dark Ages because you wanted to know—okay, we'll revisit density just to kind of remember how awful it feels.

And then we'll have an Age of Enlightenment, we'll have a Renaissance. And then we won't completely forget the Renaissance. We'll re-enact it again in the 20th century and the 21st century, your time period now, where you are, you're walking into a new Renaissance with a remembrance of every other Renaissance that you have brought forth. And you are making it, establishing it for all time.

Now, time is a most wonderful creation. You can use it as a challenge—I'm running out of time. Or you can use it as your servant. You are moving into a space now where you are using it as your servant to serve you, the collective you; serving you now in remembrance of the Oneness and bringing forth all of the other lifetimes, the experiences and expressions of the divine that you have known in other lifetimes, bringing that all into a divine re-birthing of You, the One.

What has been prophecy of the future is true. You stand on the edge—the verge, if you will—of a new Renaissance. And how you know that is by allowing yourself to live in peace. My peace, which is the divine peace, I give unto you so that you have that space of expansiveness, that space that acknowledges, "I am ready for a new Renaissance, a new knowing of how even the world can be."

The world is changing. Holy Mother Earth, which is not the same as the world, is changing. You see this every day, and you hear this on your news media. Holy Mother Earth is very much flexing her corporal body and changing some of it. But the world is the happenings of the collective consciousness. It is not holy Mother Earth. The world is the happenings and the belief systems of the collective consciousness, and it is very much undergoing a Renaissance, a change.

As there is birthing in the physical and birthing that is done with some amount of labor, there is some labor going on now as there is a rebirthing. The collective consciousness has decreed that it will know peace, harmony, expression in the expansiveness of divinity. That which you know as reality is very constricted, but it is not going to be allowed to be constrictive for much longer.

What you see happening half-way around your holy Mother Earth, what you see happening in your own geo-political grouping is but the forerunner of bursting the casing and allowing the seeds to germinate and to grow. Already that is happening, because ones have said, "This is too tight; no elbow room. I need some room."

And there has been a pushing out that you have felt in your life. You have been saying, "I want more space to ask questions and to find answers," sometimes in books, sometimes with friends, sometimes with teachers, as they are called, but to find answers deep within yourself, because even if you get an answer from a teacher or from an authority, you have to find a resonance; in other words, does this resonate with me. Some messages will, and some messages won't.

You have the power of discernment, and more and more now you are calling upon that discernment and saying, "That doesn't feel entirely true to me. I think that message," and I've heard you say this, "I think that message is fear-based. When I read that message I get a feeling right in the solar plexus that says to me, 'I don't think so.'"

Or you read a message and you say, "Oh, that feels so good. I resonate with that. I feel that I can be all that I am." That allows you to be lifted up, and as you are lifted up in consciousness, you allow others of the brothers and sisters to be lifted up with you, as well, because you put out that energy that says, "Hey, you know, I need elbow room." And the brothers and sisters say, "Yes, I've been feeling that, too." They need elbow room; they need space. And so that is what is happening.

My peace, my joy, my love I give unto you. Always I walk with you. There is no place that you can be that I cannot be with you, even if you descend into the deepest, darkest depression—and all of you have touched a place of depression this lifetime and other lifetimes, but you have not stayed there, so give yourself the gold star because you have not stayed there; maybe for a while you did until finally you said, "You know, this doesn't feel good. Maybe there's something else. I'm going to go for a walk. I'm going to call a friend. I'm going to stand on my head until I feel better, or whatever." And then you have come up out of the depression.

My love, my upliftment I give unto you. Freely I give unto you; no price; you don't have to pay a price. You don't have to go down on the knees and wear the callouses on the knees praying to me. I don't want that kind of adoration. I want the kind that says, "Hey, friend. Equal, brother, walk with me, talk with me, laugh with me. Even if I go through the craziest of the human foibles and I do the dumbest things—and sometimes you do—please walk with me and laugh with me when I come to that place of understanding that perhaps what I was doing was a bit of drama, because I am a drama queen."

And you can admit that; it's okay. And then you laugh at yourself, and I laugh with you, because I enjoy your performances (Laughter) You do them very well. Yes, you do them very well. And each time you do them, you add a new twist. And I watch, and I say, "Hey, creativity at work." And it is wonderful, full of wonder at how creative you can be.

My encouragement I give unto you; not as the world gives to you, because the world will say, "Well, maybe you're okay, but I don't think so." My encouragement is, I know who you are. I know what you are. I know the energy of love that you have birthed. I know whose and what you are, and I encourage you to live that every day. Find that which brings you joy, and live in that space, because it is contagious.

Sometimes you will have, for example, a dis-easement that goes around, a respiratory thing that has some going around sharing with each other—you love to share (Laughter) But what is even more contagious is the joy of living. When you find that space where you cannot wait to get out of bed in the morning and you are so excited to live that day, that energy goes forth and ignites other ones, and they cannot wait to see, "Who am I going to meet in this day? What am I going to do in this day? Who can I encourage? Who can I be in love with?"

Start with that one on the morrow. "Who can I be in love with this day? Wow! I love you. You are the most wonderful being (?: I love you, too) Thank you. And does that not feel great? (?: Absolutely, yes) And it is the truth of your being. Start on the morrow. Find someone to be in love with, truly in love with. Look past the bedhead (Laughter) Look past appearances. Maybe they didn't have time to comb their hair, or maybe they did and it turned out strangely (Laughter)

Look past appearances. See the heart of them, and fall in love with them. And then find the next person that you can be in love with. You don't have to say to them, "I love you." But you can laugh at their jokes. You can laugh with them. You can hug them if they will accept that. You can smile at them and appreciate them. You can even say to them, "I appreciate you; your sense of humor, your wisdom, the way you have a new perspective about something. I even like the way you tie your shoelaces."

I know shoelaces are going out of fashion. No? They are not going out of fashion? Oh, good. We'll have a Renaissance on shoelaces (Laughter) But when you find something silly as that that brings joy to the heart, you come truly alive. What happened in the last moment was, all of your auras expanded, and the energy in this room expanded, and it goes out past the walls of this dwelling place and it reaches other ones. All of the neighboring ones will wonder, "Hmm, I just felt good for a moment. I wonder what that was about."

You are powerful. Your energy is powerful. Your humor is powerful. It is even more powerful—if you will excuse me saying this—than your wisdom. Now, I know you all want to be acknowledged as the wise ones, but truly your humor is more powerful than your wisdom. "Wisdom" changes. Humor allows the bubbles of life, the bubbles of joy to come up and the energy to be changed. That is how powerful humor, laughter can be.

My laughter I give unto you. Whenever you are feeling the need for some encouragement, allow the smile. Allow that feeling of the divine smile. Picture for yourself the happy face. You have that circle that has the smile inside of it, silly little thing that when you look upon it, you cannot help but smile at yourself, because the happy face is there to remind you to smile.

Allow yourself to know my joy. Allow yourself to know my peace. Allow yourself to know my love. Anywhere and everywhere you go, I go with you, and it is an adventure. It is a joyful adventure. And when separated ego runs onstage and says, "Yes, but..." you say, "Okay, what is your joke for the day?" And separated will say, "Wait, I have to go check the script. What page are we on?"

Know how much I love you. Know how much I believe in you. Know how much I give unto you freely. My peace I give unto you. So be it.
