

THE STORMS OF LIFE

2016-10-15

Beloved and holy and only Child of our heavenly Father, Child of the one Source, Child of Light, divine. That is who you are. Take it deeply within the consciousness and contemplate what that means. Child of the one Source. Child of Light, divine.

I am the one known as Jeshua ben Joseph, Jesus you have called me, and it is in great joy that I come to abide with you this evening in your timing as you have chosen once again to call me forth. Truly it is a great joy to behold you. It is a great joy to see your aura, to see the energy of Light that you are, and know that truly you have come forth over some of the temptations to not bring the bodies and the personalities into this space this evening. You have chosen to come and to be and to give the hugs and to be with each other in love once again.

You think that you come because of me. You think that you come to hear tidbits of truth, which is true; you do; to be reminded of the truth of your being. But verily I say unto you, you come for each other, because you come to give the hugs. You come to embrace each other in the love that you are. The words that are spoken are as spark plugs for the ideas that may come forth from within you. But the true reason you come together is because it feels good to be with ones of like mind, to be with ones of like heart, to be in love.

That is where you live and move and vibrate, is in the energy of the heart. The mind is to be the servant of the heart. It is to interpret what the heart is saying to you always. The mind sometimes thinks that it is in charge, that it is running the whole show, and in truth, it is not, but it tries. Those of you who have learned to know the still, small voice within, to go to that quiet place, you hear the message of the heart and you know that truly that is where you live; not in the mind and the complexities of the mind, such as today, where you had the message of a dire weather report and that you might be better not to venture out, so the mind was saying to you, "Perhaps this is what you should do," and yet the heart was speaking to you that it wanted to be here with friends, with the ones that you can relate to as One. So here we are.

Anytime you call me, I am with you. Anytime you think of me, I am with you. Anytime when you do not think of me, I am with you, because truly the Son of God is One. What does that mean—the Son of God? Well, first of all, it can be the daughter of God as well as the Son of God; the offspring of God, the extension—as I like to put it—of God the Father/All That Is, coming forth into this plane of reality—lower case “r”—to play, to have fun with the various computer programs, to have fun with the various ones who come to your work, your place of establishment where you hang out for a while, to have fun with each other in the various groupings that you have. You come because the heart directs, and you have learned, you have adventured, you have experienced to know that truly when the heart speaks—the mind can get in the way, but oftentimes you will push the mind aside and say, “This is what the heart dictates.”

Always I have said to you two thousand years ago, and I say it once again to you, to listen to the heart, for the heart will tell you true. The mind...it is the job of the mind to give you complexities, to want to parse everything that you read. But then when you stop for the deep breath, the heart allows you to know what the words may be telling you, but truly what the meaning of the sentences and the speakings of one are truly wanting to convey: the love of the Father/Mother/God/Goddess/All That Is to come forth on this plane to be expressed and to be received.

That is truly what you do when you reach out the arms and take one in in a hug; you are exchanging the love energy. You are exchanging the love energy in the smile when you smile at someone, when there is the little bit of crinkle about the eyes and you feel at home with one and you know that you can express yourself easily and completely. You have that little bit of a sharedness with one, because they understand you, because they know that they are One with you. They are there in the Oneness.

Now, this evening the topic that we will talk about only briefly is the storms of life, because truly you have heard the storm warnings for this area. You had opportunity to listen and to say, “Well, maybe I’d better not venture out. Maybe this will be too much, and it would be a good reason to stay home and curl up by the fire and put the feet up.”

But the heart has said to you, “I want to be in love. I want to express love. I want to be with other ones who know the value of love.” So you have come and shared the love one to another, and as you have seen, the weather, so-called, has been quite mild, and you had the most wonderful reward of the rainbows, the fantastic coloring that you brought forth in the sky.

Now, I have spoken to you many times that you create your own reality. You have very dramatic proof of that this evening, this day, because you created for yourself the opportunity to hear what could be something different, and there was part of you that said, “Well, that’s okay. If that happens, that is okay, but I would prefer the calm,” and so that is what came, “and I would prefer the extra reward of the artistic coloring in the sky, the rainbow." And everywhere you looked, there was a huge—I think that is spelled nowadays with a "y"—the yuuuge, yuuuge, yuuuge rainbow. Someone in your very vast grouping has changed the spelling of that word to make it even huger—yuuuger; there you go; one must get it correct.

You were looking to see what you could bring forth. Even without asking in the words, you were wondering, "Okay, how is this day going to be? How is this storm that has been predicted going to be?" Part of you said, "Well, bring it on, whatever," and part of you said, "What else can I manifest?" So for you, you have manifested the most wondrous calm, the most wondrous rainbows. Everywhere you looked, there was a wondrous painting in front of you. There was sunshine in the midst of the rain, so when you ran out to look at the rain, the sunshine, you found the reward of the rainbow. You found the warmth of the rain. Even when you ran out to see, it was sunshine. There is sunshine on a day when it is pouring rain; a miracle.

As you will look for miracles, you will find them, because truly you are making your reality moment by moment, and you are ready now to make miracles, to experience miracles, the small ones and the big ones. In truth, there is no difference between the small ones and the big ones. A miracle is a miracle is a miracle is a miracle.

But in truth, you are—as I have said many times to you—manifesting your reality. You like to have proof right in front of you that you are manifesting, so today was one of those days to see, to take in the reality within to see what you could manifest.

It is the same with the storms of life. Sometimes you will come up against what seems to be a problem. Maybe there are ones in your family grouping who are not exactly happy with each other, and perhaps they will make for themselves some of their drama with a bit of spillover into your life that you can either behold or get into, depending on how they want to share it with you, and you see a certain storm element within the activities of the family or the activities of a grouping that you are in.

There is much of that which is happening right now, because you have much emphasis upon two speakers right now [Presidential candidates] and their followers, and it is making great drama for you to behold. They are showing you how there can be varying points of view, and you are getting to choose where you want to be. If you do not want to be in either camp, you get the opportunity to say, "No, I'm not going to read that on my computer. I'm not going to listen to that on my radio/television. I'm not going to go into it on my iPhone. I'm not going to be there with it."

If you want to stand back and just behold the drama of it, they are doing a very good job of presenting drama. They are great actors, both the ones who seem to be in the media spotlight and the ones who are holding up the ones in the media spotlight, each one acting out their drama just for your benefit. When you look at it that way, you find that you can smile. You do not have to get caught up in choice. There will come a time when you will make the choice, or perhaps you already have, but meantime, just enjoy. Watch and let it go.

You have the storms of life that you make for yourself, because you want to see how strong you can be, how creative you can be. You experience whatever is going on to the degree that you choose. In other words, two persons can look at the very same activity and judge it differently. Two can and will see it from their own vantage point, their own past experience, and will judge it by what they have known to be a truth—lower case “t”—in their experience.

That is why you get ones who will say to another one, “How can you say that’s really what it is? How can you say that that is the truth?” And ones will say, “Well, it is my truth,” although they don’t exactly say it that way perhaps, but it is their truth because of what they have experienced. So they are evaluating according to their past.

Now that you have graduated a bit, you get to behold it with a smile on your face. You get to be at peace with it, because you know that this comes and goes. The clock keeps ticking, the clouds go by, the rain may come, and then you have the rainbows. Every situation in life can be likened unto what you have experienced in this day—the prediction, the actualization, and the reward. You have come through all of it to your reward, to the place where you feel complete. You feel, “Okay, I have experienced.” Sometimes there has been a feeling of the reward that, “I didn’t know this was going to happen. I didn’t know it could happen, and yet it has.”

So as you come through all of the storms of life, I advise you—as I have done so many times—to take the deep breath. No matter what is going on, no matter who is right up in your face with something—which sometimes they like to do—you take a deep breath, sometimes two or three, and then you feel the smile coming on the face. Because truly, what does it matter? When you get to be the centenarian and have seen a good bit of life, then everything falls into its relative place of importance and you see that everything matters, but not very much.

And you can smile, because truly it is all there for your benefit. It is all there as the play that you are putting on for yourself. So you get to be the actor, you get to be the one sitting in the front row beholding it, you get to be the director, you get to be the critic of it—you like that part; you play that quite often—and it is all for your benefit. If you will remember that and take yourself apart from it, you will get much more enjoyment and you will come through the storms much more easily.

So be it.
