

Jeshua: The Personal Christ Vol. 5

Chapter 21 - Living the Life of the Master

April 3, 2019

Volume 5, Chapter 21

“What would Jesus do? I would give love. I would give the hug. I would give the smile. I would give the word of encouragement. I would say, ‘I believe in you.’ and I know that you are serving a certain plan which was set in motion before the incarnation.”

Jeshua

Introduction

In each of the Jeshua books there is a chapter on living life as a Master and Jeshua always assures us that we are the Masters that have chosen this challenging lifetime to bring Love into expression on this plane of duality.

He gives us his simple formula for this assignment. The first is the Awareness of our choices and the ability to see things through the eyes of love, the eyes of the Beholder. He reminds us that we have created “all of what I see”. So we should “call it all good. It is in my consciousness. I see it, I recognize it, and I do not judge it as the world judges. I judge it according to its divine expression.”

Next is the appreciation of the “holiness” of everyone and everything. “Allow the deep breath. Allow the eyes to soften. Allow yourself to see as the master would. Know that everything, no matter how tragic, will lead to the awakening, not only of yourself, but of others”.

He tells us that when we created this reality, we have given ourselves the gift of the process of time “to be able to reflect rather than experience instantaneous manifestation” and the gift of hope.

The building blocks to living as a master are “Be aware. Do not judge. Choose anew. Walk as the master that you are. Speak as the master. Give forth love as the master. Believe in the Christ of them, the divine energy of them.”

Affirmation for the Week:

“I am determined to see things differently.”

Discussion Questions

- What passage in this chapter touches your heart? Your mind? Your imagination?
- Jeshua tells us that “as the master, you can stand back from anything and all things and behold them as holy”. When is this most challenging for you to do? How do you call it “good” when all worldly evidence points to its opposite?
- What do you think of Jeshua’s statement that “Even the ones who seem to be serving the dark are serving the Light, because the Light and the dark make contrast and bring everything into clarity.”?
- Living from the place of the Beholder and the place of the Master seem like the same thing. Do you ever have moments of living from that point of view? How does it feel?

Assignments

1. Jeshua tells us “in the evening when you lay your head upon the pillow, take stock of the day. Go back over and review the day what has happened and how you have felt about it. Just watch it as you would watch a play upon the stage. Just watch how things unfolded, who said what to whom, how you felt about it, how you reacted or did not react. You will find that as the days go along, you will become more and more aware, and what is going to come to the forefront is how loving you truly want to be. This is the way of the master.” I suggest combining this review of the day with the evening outdoor nature meditation. Choose the time that is best for you. Journal about your efforts in this evening review and express gratitude for the day, no matter how challenging. This is the journey of living as the Master.
2. Jeshua tells us that “anyone who comes to you with anger and frustration is calling out for love”. Practice this perspective and notice the difference in your reactions to them.
3. Daily affirmation “I am determined to see things differently.”
