Study Guide

December 12, 2018

Volume 5, Chapter 9

“Be aware every day whom you are serving: the voice of the world or the Voice of the Father. Choose in every day to be the servant of the Most High.”

Jeshua

Introduction

What a simple yet profound message Jeshua gives us in this chapter, how to be a servant to our Creator (the Most High)! He anticipates our ambivalent reaction to the word “servant”, but he assures us that it is not the meaning that the world gives it. First of all we need to be teachable, open and receptive to the Source of our Being, whose intent is only for us to remember that God’s will is always for our Highest Good.

A true servant in the Divine plan is humble, disciplined yet obedient. This dedicated individual trusts God, looks for the good or holiness in every situation and most importantly listens to the Still, Small Voice inside for guidance and chooses in conscious awareness the true Christ power. That actually sounds to me like the attributes of a true master as well.

Discussion Questions

- What passage in this chapter touches your heart? Your mind? Your imagination?
- What is your reaction to Jeshua’s use of the metaphor of the servant and the characteristics that he describes of one who is willing to be obedient to the will of the Father?
- What do you think of the definition of “discipline” that Jeshua gives us: “remembering and choosing as often as is necessary, Whom you serve and What you serve”? And he promises that we will know great joy when we do so. Have you ever experienced joy when you have followed a discipline and have arrived at a place of understanding or perhaps mastery? What part does discipline play in your life? Do you have a spiritual practice that sometimes requires discipline to adhere to? Does it bring you joy?

Assignments

Affirmation for the Week:

“I choose to look upon everything with new eyes and see the good in everything.”

Jeshua

1. Follow Jeshua’s instructions “The true servant trusts and has faith, and will take the step in service even though he/she may not know and does not see the whole/holiness of the vision. That is obedience: trusting, surrendering, and having faith.” Have you had the experience of trusting the voice of Spirit in your life? What happened when you followed the urging? Have you had an experience of going against it? What happened then? Discuss with a trust friend and journal about it. Think about what you will do in the future or a present situation that you are dealing with. Can you use the message in this chapter to trust and look for the holiness?
2. Jeshua encourages us to say “here I am, Father. Show me. Teach me. Guide me.” There is a hymn that I first hear at the Cathedral of Light in Dallas, Texas that expressed that sentiment so profoundly that I was moved to tears singing it. It is “Here I Am Lord.” Though some of the words are a bit on the harsh Christian side (like sin), the meaning is still powerful in expressing the desire to be the Servant to the will of God. Listen to it at this YouTube site and let yourself feel it, especially the chorus. Does your heart respond to the yearning in this song to be of service to our Source? (Skip the ads.)

There is also another inspiring song “Lord, I offer my life to you” that also expresses a similar humble servant desire:

3. Use this affirmation daily: “I choose to look upon everything with new eyes and see the good in everything.” Enjoy!
